TRIES THREE TIMES TO FIRE HYDE HOME.

HUNDREDS OF MEN GUARD THE DOCTOR'S HOUSE BUT ARE UNABLE TO CATCH THE ARSON FIEND—WILY JAPANESE TURNS ON ALL THE GAS JETS IN THE HYDE HOUSE.

Between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock this morning two bold attempts were made to burn the residence of Dr. O. C. Hyde, 1107 Eighth street by Safa Tisshiya, a Japanese servant, who was discharged over a month ago by Mrs. Hyde for insolence.

The first attempt was made shortly after 8 o'clock. The floor of the basement was saturated with coal oil, and a bundle of clothes dripping with oil was placed near the wall and lighted. Almost instantly the basement under the kitchen was on fire and volumes of smoke issued from the doors and windows. The fire department responded quickly to an alarm and put the fire out before any damage had been done.

The second attempt at arson followed the first by about an hour. It was a bold but unsuccessful attempt. The audacity of the act and the cunning of the culprit in escaping detection may be imagined when it is stated that six policemen and hundreds of spectators were gathered around Dr. Hyde's residence at the time the second attempt at burning the house down was made.

The Japanese, for whom the police were already searching, slipped by the fire guard established around the house, procured a bundle of papers, saturated them with oil and placed them under the rear porch. The fire burned briskly for a few moments, but the prompt arrival of the firemen saved the house a second time.

The very boldness of the attempt, the cunning with which the Japanese made his escape and the persistency of the incendiary has left the neighborhood in a state bordering on terror.

In Dr. Hyde's household there are five or six women. Last night was an anxious one for them. The revengeful Japanese began molesting the house during the evening. He threw stones through the window and otherwise disturbed the inmates with acts of malicious mischief. About a month ago. Dr. Hyde was compelled to have the vindictive Jap arrested for throwing stones at him. Since then "Frank" as the Jap is called, has at intervals returned to the house and insolently demanded re-instatement as a domestic in the household. On being met with a refusal, he has invariably revenged himself in some petty manner. He would on some occasions, turn the gas on in all the rooms of the house, and make his escape without detection.

Last night "Frank's" actions alarmed Dr. Hyde, and he sent for police protection. Three policemen stationed themselves around the house. Two men within the house kept watch, assisted by the nervous women. Yet, despite all the precautions, the Jap entered the house, turned on the gas in seven different rooms, and made his escape without detection.

Mrs. Hyde in an interview said:

"I discharged 'Frank' about a month ago and ever since then he has been annoying us with all sorts of mischief, culminating in the attempt to burn us out of house and home. Last night he threw a rock through the window and hit the servant.

"On a half dozen occasions the family has been disturbed by the flitting of a ghostly-like figure through the rooms during the night. These visitations came at the most unexpected times After each visit the gas would be turned on in all the rooms.

"The ghostly manifestation we blamed to Frank. I think he is insane. He certainly displays all the cunning of insanity and the ingenuity of an Oriental in the methods of his revenge."

Hundreds of people gathered about the house and heard the story told. The fear of arson has spread among the neighbors. No one knows whose house may be selected next. Half a dozen detectives are working on the case but up to a late hour today. They have not captured the incendiary.

THIRD ATTEMPT.

For the third time up to noon today the residence of Dr. O. C. Hyde was set on fire by the Japanese boy "Frank." This time he started a fire under the stairway with oil and paper, but was unsuccessful in doing any additional damage.

He effected an entrance by first crawling through the basement window of the home of J. C. Hansen, 1109 Eighth street, on the west side, and opening the window of Dr. Hyde's residence from the basement window of Hansen's residence.

The detectives on duty did not see the man enter. A little boy, Walter Abel, residing at the corner of Eighth and Kirkham streets, says he saw the Jap run after the fire was started. A crowd of 200 people surrounded the house to prevent the firebug's escape, but the wiley son of Mikado slipped through the human fence without detection.

A Japanese gardener working in the vicinity says that Frank is an accomplished criminal and is introducing Oriental methods of crime and revenge in this city. The police are completely baffled.

The terror of the residents is increasing, and tonight many anxious eyes will not close in slumber for fear that in the dark hours of the night their dwellings may become a roaring furnace.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT IS STRONG FOR NIGHT SCHOOLS

MAYOR BARSTOW AND CONGRESSMAN METCALF OUTSPOKEN AGAINST CLOSING THEM — CITIZENS ARE READY TO CONTRIBUTE.

Public sentiment is deeply aroused over the threatened closing of the evening schools and the expression is general that the schools must be kept open even if the necessary funds have to be raised by subscription.

Many prominent citizens state that they will subscribe liberally and cheerfully to so worthy an object. An examination of the law shows that the funds raised in the High School levy cannot be used to support night schools of the primary and grammar grades.

Therefore if the rule laid down in the Stockton case by the Supreme Court is not modified the schools can only be kept open this year by voluntary contributions. Last year the total expense of conducting these grades was $3,318.

"Rather than see the evening schools close I would go up and down the streets myself, hat in hand, to solicit the money necessary to keep them open. And there would be a jingle in the hat before I approached the first man."

Such was Mayor Barstow's emphatic declaration in regard to the matter. Continuing the Mayor said:

"Although I am not in a position yet to give official expression upon the subject I have a private opinion, and I told Mr. McClymonds, the Superintendent of Schools, what I thought might be done. That was to lop off some of the fancy frills at the Central High School and turn the money that could be saved over to the night schools. But before I had finished my story I was met by the Superintendent's statement that the money now set aside for High School purposes could not be used for any other department.

"There is no question that the night schools with their hundreds of pupils, old and young, who are struggling to get some education are immensely important. We can ill afford to dispense with these schools, which are providing training for pupils who could get it in no other way.

"I trust that the Board of Education will promptly take this matter in hand and find a way out of the difficulty."

Superintendent of Schools McClymonds has called for opinions from District Attorney Allen and City Attorney Johnson. A special meeting of the Board of Education will be called for Monday night to discuss the situation.

"I am opposed to closing the night schools under any circumstances," said Congressman Metcalf. "If it is necessary to close any department of the public school, the night schools should be the very last to be closed. If they cannot be kept open in any other way I am ready to contribute liberally to their maintenance. They afford educational facilities to those who most need and deserve them, and it would be an act of gross injustice to deprive those who must earn their living by working during the day, the opportunity to improve their minds by evening study."

"The night schools will not close if I can prevent it" said Director Clift. "Members of the Board of Education receive no salary, but I am willing to put my hand in my pocket to keep them going."

"I am strongly opposed to closing the night schools," said Ex-Mayor Chapman. "The boy or man who is so anxious to obtain an education as to devote the evening hours to study after working all day should be given every opportunity to do so. The pupils of the night schools are entitled to consideration above all others and they should not be deprived of their rightful due even if the money has to be raised by subscription."

SAN DIEGO MAN DEAD.

Bryant Howard, a Prominent Southern Citizen, Passes Away.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 12. — Bryant Howard, one of San Diego's most prominent pioneer citizens, died this morning after a painful illness of four months.

He was born at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1835, and came to San Diego in 1869, and in 1870 organized the Bank of San Diego, which in 1879 was combined with the Commercial Bank, under the name of the Consolidated Bank, it being yet a State bank.

In 1883 it was reorganized as the Consolidated National Bank. The panic of 1893 compelled it to close its doors.

This was a blow from which Mr. Howard never recovered, and his health steadily failed under the strain and worry caused by the failure of the bank.

DIMMICK IS GUILTY ON TWO COUNTS.

PRESENTED A FRAUDULENT VOUCHER TO CASHIER COLE AND COLLECTED AND USED THE MONEY--CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT, HOWEVER, IS NOT SUSTAINED BY THE JURY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.--Walter N. Dimmick, ex-Chief Clerk of the United States Mint in this city was found guilty of issuing false vouchers, in the United States District Court this morning by a jury which had been charged by Judge De Haven.

The accused was charged with issuing fraudulent vouchers as also with embezzlement.

The first charge was included in the first and fourth counts of the indictment, and it was on these, Dimmick was found guilty.

The first count charged Dimmick with having presented a false voucher to Cashier Cole of the Mint for payment, the amount of which was $498.-38.

The fourth count alleged that Dimmick had used the money.

The second count alleged embezzlement, but the Court sustained a demurrer on the ground that there was an error in the date of the alleged criminal act.

The third count alleged embezzlement also.

On this, however, Dimmick was found not guilty because there was not sufficient evidence to show that the money alleged to have been embezzled had been received by Dimmick.

The jury retired to deliberate at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

They had been, in effect, instructed by the court to bring in a verdict of guilty.

They took only one ballot.

They returned to court this afternoon at 1:39 o'clock and announced their findings.

Dimmick smiled faintly when the verdict was read.

He will appear for sentence next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock A. M., before Judge De Haven.

The punishment for the crime is imprisonment in the State Penitentiary for not more than five years.

The North Coast limited train, westbound, on the Northern Pacific, was ditched at a small station called Dempsey's, about twenty-eight miles west of Butte, at 8:30 o'clock Friday night, but according to information received in Butte no one was injured.

Six crowded passenger coaches left the track but remained upright. The engine, baggage car and observation car remained on the track. The amount of damage has not been learned, but the railroad officials insist that no one was injured.

The wreck was caused by a lot of bridge timbers having been piled near the track and were struck by the train.

LIBERIA MEN WIN A POINT.

British Officials Give Them the Right to Navigate the Manna River.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Associated Press learns that the Liberian officials who arrived in England early in August with the object of obtaining from Great Britain the right to navigate the Manna River have been successful, despite the fact that Great Britain was unwilling at first to grant the request of the Republic.

In addition to this the envoys discussed with the Colonial Office further and more important propositions. These were put in the form of a memorandum which is now being submitted to the Liberian government. If, as is thought most probable, this memorandum is ratified, Liberia's international status will be considerably strengthened.

GOVERNMENT'S CASE TO END ON MONDAY.

SAID THAT HE PROTESTED AGAINST SAMPSON'S CONGRATULATIONS TO SCHLEY—INTERESTING TESTIMONY IS GIVEN IN THE CASE NOW BEING HEARD AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Captain F. E. Chadwick, who was Admiral Sampson's chief of staff during the war with Spain, continued his testimony before the Schley Court of Inquiry today under cross-examination at the hands of Mr. Rayner. Other witnesses of the day were Lieutenant Sidney A. Staunton, who was Captain Chadwick's principal assistant, and Lieut. Nathan C. Twining, who was aboard the battleship Iowa as an officer during the Santiago campaign.

Most of yesterday's witnesses were recalled for the purpose of correcting their testimony.

ONLY ONE SESSION.

There was only one session of the court today, a decision having been reached yesterday to adjourn at 1 o'clock today until next Monday in order to give the members of the court and counsel an opportunity for recreation and recuperation.

WILL CONCLUDE MONDAY.

Captain Lemly said today that he expects to conclude the presentation of the Government's side of the case on Monday. It is understood that Mr. Rayner will be prepared to immediately begin the introduction of Admiral Schley's witnesses, and it is his intention to press the case forward as rapidly as possible.

After reading the dispatch in question, the witness said:

"I was informed of its purport at the time it was sent to the Marblehead."

"Did you see it when it was sent to the Marblehead?"

"I did not read it."

"When did you first read it?"

"I did not read the original dispatch until the answer was received from Commodore Schley, brought by the Hawk."

"Was that on May 26th, when your ship was at a point between Havana and Cape Francis, in the vicinity of Cape Pedras?"

"Yes."

"Did you have the blockade of Cienfuegos in mind when you protested against the sending of the congratulatory dispatch?"

"May I ask if you mean that I had that only in mind?"

"I do not mean that. I mean whether you had it in mind at all."

"I can say I had it partially."

CAPTAIN CHADWICK.

When Captain Chadwick took the stand Mr. Rayner formally addressed the Court, requesting permission to ask the witness two questions, which he outlined. He called attention to his question put to Captain Chadwick yesterday concerning a telegram of congratulation which Admiral Sampson had sent to Commodore Schley on May 28. He had asked the witness if he remembered that message and the witness had replied that he did remember it very well, adding: "Because I protested against his congratulations."

Mr. Rayner said that this last expression was purely voluntary on Captain Chadwick's part and was not necessary in response to the inquiry. The questions which he stated to the Court were as follows:

First: "When did you first learn of the existence of dispatch No. 8?"

Second: "Did you then, in protesting against the sending of this congratulatory dispatch, refer to his blockade of Cienfuegos in dispatch No. 8?"

Admiral Dewey stated that Court had no objection to the questions and Captain Lemly said he would not object, providing he could cross-examine on the points raised. Mr. Rayner did not concede this request, but before the point was decided Mr. Rayner asked his first question, as previously given, to the Court.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT IS FOR NIGHT SCHOOLS.

"The night schools must not close; I am ready to contribute to keep them open," said Judge Nusbaumer."

"I stand ready to put up," said George W. Reed.

"Quote me as willing to contribute cheerfully," said Judge Harry A. Melvin.

"It would be a disgrace to this city to close the night schools," said Ex-Superintendent of Schools Fred M. Campbell. "They are attended by the class that the public schools are intended to benefit most, and who have the largest claim on the school system."

Dr. C. M. Hill, pastor of the Tenth Avenue Baptist Church said:

"The Board of Education must find some other means of retrenchment. The closing of the evening schools would mean that many poor boys and girls who have no other way of obtaining an education would be deprived of the right which should be guaranteed to all. The closing of the evening schools would be a great misfortune to the city and a great injustice to the deserving pupils."

The Rev. Father McSweeney of St. Francis de Sales' Church said:

"The poor boys and girls who depend upon the evening schools for their education should be the first considered. I think it would be a public shame to close the evening schools."

Rabbi M. Friedlander of the First Hebrew Congregation said:

"It would be an outrage, a terrible blow to our institutions, to close the evening schools, and I for one shall make a vigorous protest against it. We need the evening schools, perhaps more than any other branch of our public school system."

The Rev. B. Fay Mills, pastor of the First Unitarian Church said:

"This matter should be given the most careful thought by all our citizens. To close the evening schools would be an unspeakable calamity and a public disgrace."

Among bankers, merchants, lawyers, clergymen and citizens generally these utterances were echoed with emphasis and this expression of popular sentiment is a strong indication that the schools will not be allowed to close. They can be maintained for the remainder of the year and this sum can be raised somehow.

STEAMERS SIGHTED WERE THE WARSHIPS.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Oct. 12.—It is now reported that the apparently disabled steamer and the other by which it was being towed toward land, which the Cape Race lookout announced yesterday evening, have proved to be the British warships Alert and Columbie, which left here yesterday morning for Halifax, the former being ordered to proceed to Panama, owing to the disturbances there, and the latter being convoyed as far as Halifax, where she will winter.

CECIL RHODES IS VERY ILL.

Is Almost a Wreck and Is Liable to Go Off at Any Minute.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Cecil Rhodes, whose part in politics and empire-making is vividly recalled by the Schnadhorst episode, is living almost absolutely alone at a quiet hotel on a diet and with the attentions of a man who is seriously ill. There is no doubt that he is suffering from heart disease and is no longer the robust man of former times, yet he never missed a day this week at the office of the British Chartered South Africa Company, burying himself in details and conducting tedious meetings without complaint or mention of his ill health.

After these duties, however, in the quiet of his hotel, he seems to become almost a wreck, "like a man liable to go off at any moment," as one of his few visitors said on coming out of his room.

Usually Mr. Rhodes is supremely indifferent to public sentiment, preferring rather to ride rough-shod over criticisms, but in the matter of the Schnadhorst letters he has expressed the keenest desire to hear public comment. His efforts, however, have met with slight success.

It was also recommended that the commission be permitted to substitute for readings in its report not taken from one or another of these sources other readings taken from those sources, which shall also be hereby authorized.

It is understood that the Bishops acceded to this departure from the original report of the joint commission with great reluctance and only in order to secure some action on the subject in this convention.

There was also a strong expression among the Deputies in favor of another opportunity to vote on the resolution from the joint commission, but no way was found for it so the House divided on the report of the Committee on Conference.

Clerical vote: Ayes, 54; noes, 4.

Lay vote: Ayes, 47; noes 3; divided, 2. So the report was declared adopted.

HOUSE OF BISHOPS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. — The House of Bishops this morning voted in favor of the appointment of a joint committee to consist of three Bishops, three Presbyters, and three laymen to consider the subject of prohibited decrees of marriage. On the part of the House of Bishops the Bishops of South Dakota, Delaware and Iowa were appointed as members of this committee.

The Bishops of Montana, Central Pennsylvania, Lexington, Washington, and the Coadjutor Bishop of Virginia were appointed to act with a similar number of Presbyters and laymen on a committee to nominate a board of managers for the Board of Missions.

It was agreed to amend the former rule, now a part of the constitution, which provides that a Bishop retired by reason of advanced age or bodily infirmity arising therefrom, shall be entitled to an honorary seat in the House of Bishops by striking out the words "arising therefrom," so that Bishops incapacitated shall be entitled to seats.

The next session of the House of Bishops will be held on Monday.

PAT CROWE WANTS TO SURRENDER.

Tired of Being an Outlaw and Is Anxious to Stand Trial.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 12.—Chief of Police Donahue has received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend of the latter, an offer to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnaping of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr., is withdrawn.

Chief Donahue did not accept the proposition, but made a counter offer to waive the reward himself, saying nobody else could secure it.

The Chief says Crowe is tired of being hunted and is willing to take chances of a trial if the reward is withdrawn but expresses the fear that manufactured testimony would convict him if the reward were allowed to stand.

He says Crowe is less than 500 miles from Omaha and is not with his relatives.

MARK THALL DIES SUDDENLY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Mark Thall, the well-known theatrical man, died this afternoon suddenly.

He was one of the proprietors of the Alcazar and Central Theaters.

Mr. Thall felt that he was overworked and was about to retire to a hospital. He then contemplated taking a trip to Japan for his health.

At one time he was manager of the Macdonough Theater in Oakland.

SCHLEY CASE.

After Mr. Rayner had formally asked his second question, Captain Chadwick offered a written reply, but Mr. Rayner objected, saying: "I must first read what he has written before he answers. It might be something very objectionable. Suppose he did protest. How does that effect the case? What we wanted is the congratulatory dispatch. Now, he brings in something entirely different. If the witness in answer to my second question says 'Yes' or 'No,' I won't object but if he says anything else I would like to have the opportunity of seeing what he has written."

THE CONGRATULATIONS.

Captain Chadwick then tore up his written reply and answered verbally: "I had it partially in mind."

On re-direct examination Mr. Hanna brought out the information that the telegram of congratulation to Commodore Schley had been based partially upon the capture of a collier with coal for the Spanish fleet, which capture was made by Captain Sigsbee.

Sampson's dispatch to Schley reads: "United States Flagship New York, St. Nicholas Channel, May 27, 1898:

"Sir: Every report and particularly daily confidential reports received at Key West from Havana, state Spanish squadron has been in Santiago de Cuba from the 19th to the 25th instant, inclusive, the 25th being the date of the last report received. You will please proceed with all possible dispatch to Santiago to blockade the port. If on arrival there you receive positive information of the Spanish ships having left, you will follow them in pursuit. Very respectfully,

"W. T. SAMPSON."

Mr. Hanna—What is the first positive order?

Mr. Rayner—May 27.

Mr. Hanna—Did he receive it on the 27th?

Mr. Rayner—He never received it on the 27th (after being prompted by Admiral Schley). He got it on June 10th.

CAPTURED A SICK COMMANDER.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Lord Kitchener reports to the War Office from Pretoria under today's date that General French's columns have captured commandant Scheeper, but does not state whether Scheeper's commando, which has been active in Cape Colony, was captured or not. The British have been in pursuit for a couple of weeks. Scheeper himself was so ill that he was obliged to travel in a buggy.

Gaining in Popularity.

Henry A. Hellwegen, the local agent of the Enterprise Brewing Company, is more than pleased with the demand for this well known beverage, and its steadily increasing popularity bespeaks a bright future for it. The Enterprise is the only establishment that remained with the unions during the recent strike, and it behooves the laboring men to stand by the Enterprise beer.

An exhibition of fancy swimming and diving will be given under the direction of Prof. Hawthorne, champion 100 yards swimmer of America, at the Piedmont Baths on next Sunday afternoon.

GARRITY CHARGES THE CHIEF.

Oakland, Oct. 12, 1901—Editor TRIBUNE: Now that the Police Commissioners are investigating the personnel of the Police Department, they might do well to start at the head instead of the tail end and take up the story that Sergeant Clark has been circulating throughout the department to the effect that Chief Hodgkins could account for a couple of bicycles that disappeared from the hall some time ago, and of which there is no record made upon the book in the Captain's office, where an entry or record of the receipt and departure of all articles that have been in the care or custody of the Police Department is usually made.

Clark in telling the story says: "That although the records show that the wheels arrived at the hall, upon investigation made by him and Captain Peterson after the wheels had disappeared, they could find no record of how they left or by whom taken, and still later saw the same wheels in the possession of the Chief and his wife riding about town."

If the Commissioners are, as they allege, going down the line and will investigate the actions and character of every man in the department, here is a matter they should look into at once. Yours very respectfully, PETER GARRITY.

ALAMEDA LICENSE KNOCKED OUT.

Judge Greene has decided that the Alameda license ordinance does not affect delivery drivers for Oakland merchants. This is a large victory for the Oakland merchants.

NON-UNION MAN IS MURDERED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—Geo. W. Rice, the non-union machinist who was assaulted and shot by three men last evening, died of his injuries today. His dying statement fixed the crime very closely on the three men now under arrest.

William Buckley, Thomas Moran and Charles Donnelly, now in the tanks under suspicion, have tangled themselves up in contradictory statements and the web of evidence woven about them by Detectives Timothy Bailey and Thomas Ryan bids fair to hold them secure.

LARGE FIRE ACROSS BAY.

BURGLARS MAKE SMALL HAUL.

Blow Open a Safe at Saginaw and Get Money and Checks.

SAGINAW, Mich., Oct. 12.—Early today burglars who had previously blown open the safe in the office of the United States Graphite Company here and secured $30 in cash and $600 in checks, terrorized the inhabitants of the village of Fosters, near here.

They captured night watchman Jones, bound and gagged him. Then they took him to Harden's hardware store, where they blew open the safe. Unable to open the strong-box, they made the watchman conduct them to Harden's home.

Harden was prepared for them and opened fire. The burglars used the captive watchman as a shield to Harden's fire. Jones was shot in the hand but none of the burglars were hit. The shooting aroused the villagers and the burglars fled.

THE COUNTY GOVERNMENT ACT

The following opinions are given concerning the County Government Act in view of the Supreme Court decision on the Codes:

J. P. Cook, Chief Deputy County Clerk—I do not believe that the decision of the Supreme Court in declaring invalid the revised Codes necessarily effects the County Government Act As I understand the matter the objection to the amendment is that their entitlement is not sufficiently explicit. While it may be said that the County Government Act is somewhat faulty in the same particular, I think it probable that the Judges will look at the County Act in a different light.

Recorder A. K. Grim—I have not looked into the merits of the Superior Court's decision, and am consequently not qualified to express an opinion as to the legal aspect of the matter. If, however, the County Act should be declared invalid, the old method would immediately go into effect. For this office there would be an apportionment of $16,000. I should then engage my own help and pay them out of the general salary. The Supreme Court seems to be annulling a great deal of legislation, and for this reason I think it not unlikely that the Act be invalidated.

District Attorney J. J. Allen—The copy of the findings of the Supreme Court have not reached this office, and for this reason I do not like to express an authoritative opinion. There seems to be some ground for the position taken by Judge Beasly in an interview, but the case is one requiring careful scrutiny.

If the act were to be annulled the old order of things would be resumed and there would be some radical changes in several offices where the fee system formerly obtained. This, in my opinion, would be a misfortune to the county.

BULLER IS THE TALK OF LONDON

Society is Gossiping About the Remarkable Action of the General.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The South African campaign has had a curious effect on British Generals. Public attention is centered on General Buller's extraordinary exhibition, while society is gossiping about the remarkable action of another General. This one is a Knight Commander of the Bath, holding a high command in South Africa. He is over 60 years of age, has been a widower for two years and has engaged himself by letter to marry a woman of 50, whom he has not seen for twenty years. The bride-elect, who is an Irish woman, is preparing to go out to South Africa.

As for General Buller, he seems to have forever shattered every vestige of his reputation.

A representative of the Associated Press learns that previous to General Buller's speech of Thursday he had received several plain hints from the office expressing the hope that he would not accept invitations to make speeches. His appointment to the command of the army corps was made in a spirit of generosity. It was thought that General Buller could not do much harm in the two years remaining before he retired. Failure to appoint him would have signified a public disgrace, which the War Office was not willing to inflict on him, believing that General Buller had done his duty to the best of his ability.

OF INTEREST TO ADVERTISERS.

Messrs. Nelson Chesman & Co., advertising agents, St. Louis, Mo., Chicago, Ills., and Pittsburg, Pa., have just issued their Newspaper Rate Book for the current year. It contains a complete list of the newspapers and periodicals throughout the United States and Canada with a circulation of 5,000 copies and over. It gives detailed advertising rates of each, character of the publication, length and width of advertising columns and in fact every feature pertaining to the publication which is likely to prove of interest to an advertiser.

It represents a very heavy expenditure on the part of the publishers who have had for months a corps of trained experts collecting this information and compiling it in a manner to make it thoroughly intelligible to all advertisers. It is brought out at a timely season, as very many advertisers select the fall of the year as the most suitable time for making their annual advertising appropriations. The work will unquestionably prove a desirable addition to the library of any advertiser—large or small—who is not already thoroughly conversant with the value of different publications, and all such should avail themselves of the opportunity to secure a copy.

GOOD WORK IS BEING DONE BY THE EBELL CLUB — STATE CLUBS ARE PROGRESSING AND ARE MAKING A RECORD FOR THEMSELVES.

The Ebell of Oakland has just issued its New Year Book, 1901-1902. It is a very daintily gotten up affair, with covers of rough white linen paper, lettered in gold.

On the first page inside is this quotation from Matthew Arnold, "Let us strive for an inward spiritual activity, having for its characters increased sweetness, increased light, increased life, increased sympathy."

Simultaneously with the Year Book, was issued the following program for the month of October, two of which were rendered this week.

The attention is called to the donation of cup, saucer and plate to Ebell's china closet. All members who have not complied with this time-honored custom, are earnestly desired to do so, as our china stock is running low.

Dues are now payable.

The luncheon on Tuesday was a charming affair, and in addition to the musical gems rendered, the audience had the pleasure of listening to a couple of recitations, also short addresses from Mrs. Horace Wilson and Miss Plexotto. Mrs. Wilson explained at some length the movement on foot among the women of the United States to raise the money necessary to found the University at Washington City, to be known as the "George Washington University." Five hundred thousand dollars is needed, the amount to be apportioned among the different States. California's share is $15,000 and of this amount Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, whom Mrs. Wilson referred to as "our fairy godmother," has already subscribed $5,000. All the prominent educators in the United States are interested in this great university to be, work upon which will commence about the first of November.

Following Mrs. Wilson, Miss Plexotto spoke in somewhat lighter vein. This lady is a graduate of the California University at Berkeley, and besides has taken degrees abroad. Her theme was women and their manner of work, and her leading thought that they should concentrate their energies more deeply on anything attempted.

There is a reading circle, composed entirely of ladies, in the little town of Folsom, Sacramento county, whose example might be followed with pleasure and profit in other localities throughout our State. California is so vast in area, and the distance between homes often so great, that life in the country here is apt to lack many desirable elements of social life. Realizing this, these Folsom ladies, some three or four years ago formed their reading circle in a most informal manner, and have carried it on in the same way ever since. The leading spirits got their heads together at the commencement, and determined upon whom to invite as members, also as to the number, which had to be limited, for the reason that they were to meet once a month at the homes of the members, alternately. Seventeen ladies joined, and at their first meeting decided that each one should purchase a leading book of the day, these books to be circulated among the members, and as fast as read, a new supply purchased. This was done, and the books furnished an almost inexhaustible topic of conversation among those who read them. In addition, at every meeting a selected story, usually short, though once in a while a continued one was used, was read aloud by some one of the members. When it was finished, refreshments would be served and comments in order. The circle confines itself almost exclusively to novels of the day most talked about, and in that way gains an in sight into life beyond the narrow limits of Sacramento county. This reading circle hasn't even a name, and lacks president, chairman or officer of any sort, yet it has existed for several years with very little change in its personnel, and has proved a most harmonious whole, as well as a factor for intellectual advancement in the community. It was customary for the ladies to bring a bit of needlework along with them in the afternoons, so that hands and minds were both kept busy.

Mrs. Schussler, wife of the manager of the great Natoma vineyard, with its one thousand acres stretching farther than eye can reach, was one of the active promoters of the circle, and though her home was on the ranch five miles from town and at least eight miles from the homes of two of the members, never once, unless away from the county, did she ever fail to be present. Mrs. Schussler moved to San Francisco this fall in order to place her daughters in the high school there, but it is safe to say that her influence will long be felt in the little community perched on the banks of the American River.

The statement was erroneously made last week that California has sixty-one clubs belonging to the General Federation. This is not true. There are but Twenty-four clubs belonging to the General Federation, while those belonging to the State Federation number sixty-one.

Laurel Hall is the oldest literary Club in the State of California, composed of women exclusively. Its objects are self culture and social interchange of members' ideas and ideals.

The object of the Philomath Club of this State is to encourage literary pursuits and to promote higher life among members. It believes that reciprocity is as advantageous to clubs as to countries; that it is the commerce of ideas, and by its constant activty is the salt of life.

Current topics and the discussion of some of the crying evils of the day, especially as regards children in reform schools, are the subjects the Women's Council debates upon.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette of Los Angeles is authority for the statement that "California women in federation stand for the home first, and for all that is noblest, purest and best for true womanhood and the State."

ANNA MURRAY'S WILL FILED FOR PROBATE.

WOMEN TO MEET ACROSS BAY.

Seventh Ward Club Holds a Session and Elects Delegates to Convention.

On October 18 and 19 the annual convention and election of officers of the California Woman's Suffrage Association will be held in San Francisco in Yosemite Hall of the Native Sons' building on Mason street, between Geary and Post. An executive board meeting will be held at half-past 9 on Friday morning, and the first session of the convention will open at 10:30. The morning sessions will be devoted to the business of the association. On Friday afternoon there will be a symposium of five-minute speeches on "Practical Work for Clubs." A special feature will be made of the reception to delegates and their friends, to be held Friday evening. The conventions have heretofore been devoted to business and addresses, and there has been very little opportunity for the workers from different part of the State to become acquainted. There will be music and refreshments. On Saturday afternoon there will be short addresses. Among the speakers for the convention are Mrs. B. Fay Mills, Dr. Alida C. Avery, Mrs. E. O. Smith of San Jose, Mrs. J. N. Chapman of Alameda, Mrs. J. Horr, Mrs. Wm. Keith, Miss Selina Colomons, Mrs. Frances Williamson, Mrs. M. E. Pelton, Mr. Austin Lewis, Mr. Albert H. Elliot and others. The public is cordially invited to all sessions.

The Seventh Ward Political Equality Club met on Thursday evening and elected the following delegates and alternates to the State Suffrage convention: Emma Shafter Howard, Miss Mabel Craft, Mrs. Lowell, J. Hardy, Mrs. E. E. Greenman, Mrs. C. W. Emery, Mrs. J. H. Stewart, Mrs. M. A. Thompson, and Mrs. John L. Burnside.

SOCIETY NEWS.

quent address to the couple setting forth the advantages accruing from the marriage, enumerating its responsibilities and pointing out to the bride and groom how their union could be a source of happiness to themselves and gratification to their friends and relatives.

The clergyman then repeated the words which made the couple, respectively, husband and wife.

The bride was attended by Miss Jennie Rowley as bridesmaid and the groom's best man was John Callaghan.

The bride presented a beautiful appearance. She was attired in an elegant gown of white organdie over white silk. She wore a long, graceful tulle veil, which was caught up by a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful shower boquet of bride's roses.

The bridesmaid wore a gown of white organdie over yellow silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Holland, the sister of the bride, wore a black silk grenadine over red silk.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the spectators retired from the church and the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride, 967 Pine street, where the wedding took place.

The home was beautifully decorated under the loving direction of Nettie and Annie Holland, sisters of the bride, and presented a most beautiful appearance.

An elaborate bridal banquet was served both in the home and in the grounds adjoining, under the direction of Depue, and was heartily enjoyed by the guests.

Harry Pulcifer, the attorney, acted as toastmaster. He gave an eloquent exposition of the purpose of the gathering, spoke in the highest terms of the charms and goodness of the bride, commended the manliness of the groom and congratulated him upon the exceeding good fortune which had attended his selection of a partner for life.

Mr. Pulcifer's remarks were the keynote of the flow of soul which followed, nearly every person present being moved to eloquence by the thought which dominated and the spirit of the occasion.

Among those who spoke were D. Holland, John Ferrin, James Henneberry, J. Callaghan, Oscar Rodgers, Will Holland and even Master Melville Holland, who delivered himself of the effort that he wished both "Barbara and Mike would have lots of prosperity."

The festivity and rejoicing continued until an early hour in the morning.

The bride is the step-daughter of Dennis Holland, the well known detective. The groom is connected with the Fire Department in Golden Gate. The couple have taken up their home there in a pretty cottage prepared for their occupancy.

Among the guests were Irving Robertson, Miss Gertrude Robinson, Misses Annie and Etta Holland, Mrs. Olson, Mr. and Mrs. McNutt, Mr. and Mrs. John Broderick, Miss Mary Halpin, Messrs. Ronaldson, John Gardiner, Delucchi, Parker, Meyers, Flege, Siedentopf, Gormon, Demaris, John Dugan, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Henneberry, Mrs. Rowley, Mrs. Bogard, Mrs. Collins, Frank Perriet, Miss Josie Squires, Shiel, Arrosbay, George Bastian, Miss Georgie Sims, E. Rodriguez, Will Holland, John Halpin, Harry Pulcifer, Robert Callaghan, Dennis Holland, John Ferrin, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyle, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Spohn, Timothy Holland, J. Rohrbacher, J. McMullan, J. Brockard, E. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Crowley, Mrs. Crabb and a number of others.

The rooms of the house were decorated in white and green. After supper, at which thirty guests were present, Mr. and Mrs. Priestley left for a Southern tour, after which they will live in Alameda. Miss Hammond is the daughter of City Trustee C. J. Hammond.

MARRIED IN ALAMEDA.

Thomas Egan Jr. and Miss Mary Owens were married at 7 o'clock last Sunday evening at St. Joseph's Church, Alameda, by Rev. P. A. Foley, the pastor. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives and friends of the couple. Miss Kate McKeany of Livermore was the maid of honor, and the groom was attended by his brother, Jamse Egan of San Francisco.

A reception and banquet followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Owens on Santa Clara avenue.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. M. Owens, and sister of Edward H. and Martin H. Owens, well-known residents of the West End, in Alameda. The groom is the eldest son of Thomas Egan, a pioneer settler in the eastern end of the county and a member of the San Francisco commission house of Egan Bros. Mr. and Mrs. Egan will spend several months at the Egan place, near Altamont, and then go to San Francisco.

Wine of Cardui is the best guardian of a woman's health during every period from youth to old age. At no time in her life can she afford to be without this simple vegetable medicine, which is now used throughout the civilized world. The young girl who takes Wine of Cardui when she is 13 years old, avoids the shocks and distresses of coming womanhood. With the aid of this great emmenagogue, she developes into a healthy, beautiful woman and avoids the pain so common to her sex. It helps her safely into womanhood. As a young wife and mother it sustains her during the trials of the new relation into which she has entered. It has brought the laughter of happy children to thousands of barren homes. The mother who uses this pure Wine keeps her health and makes herself a blessing to her family. Later it gently leads her through the dangerous period known as the change of life. This pure harmless Wine is the best medicine a woman can take at any trying crisis. It is not a strong medicine, but may be taken every day in the year by any woman with benefit. It does not force results, but it corrects all derangements of the menstrual organs. It strengthens the nervous system, gives tone to the bodily functions, acts directly on the genital organs, and is the finest tonic for women known to the science of medicine. It is Nature's provision for regulating the menstrual function.

THE SUGAR WAR.

The great war that is on between the sugar magnates promises to be a memorable struggle between the giants of capital. Upon one side stand the beet sugar men seeking to obtain power and legislation in behalf of the new industry that has sprung up in the country, while against them are arrayed the cane sugar operators with their enormous interests in the Islands of Cuba, Hawaii, and other producing centers.

An interesting feature of the situation is to figure out what is at stake. It is but a fair estimate to say that an average of one-tenth of a pound of sugar per day is consumed by each resident of the United States. With a population of 70,000,000, this, therefore, means 7,000,000 pounds of sugar daily, which at a cent a pound is $70,000 a day, $25,550,000 per annum, and well over $2,000,000 each month. To raise or reduce sugar even a fraction of a cent in consequence causes the fluctuation of an enormous amount of money, and when, as was done the other day, the Havemeyer people make a cut of a cent a pound in certain districts, it can be seen what a fierce warfare is in progress.

The beet sugar men point out, though, that the reductions by the trust are being made under conditions that do not benefit the great masses of the people. If the cut were general it would be a different proposition, but the fact is that the cane sugar operators have only reduced prices in the markets available to the beet men, which, it is said, amount to but about ten per cent of the entire country, thus giving those dealing in cane sugar ninety per cent of territory in which to even things up. With such a handicap against them, the beet men have a hard enough fight on hand outside of other complications that appear to be ahead. The most dangerous of these from their standpoint, is the proposed reciprocity treaty with Cuba, for under it the cane men will be still further equipped and in fact will be almost in a position to crowd beet sugar interests to the wall. President Roosevelt is believed to be in favor of the Cuban treaty, and the sugar trust is therefore pinning much hope in that direction, as the influences of the administration would go a long way towards carrying their point for them. However, the Western Senators and Representatives from the beet-growing States are going to line up every force they can in opposition, so when the clash comes at the next session of Congress it looks like giving Washington a shake-up that will not be forgotten for many a day.

It is stated that a condition of the deal by which the Market Street Railway is transferred to a Baltimore syndicate is that all outstanding stock must be purchased at "par." The local concern seems willing to "father" the responsibility of guarding the interests of our own people.

Panama is getting ready to fight one of her neighboring revolutionary powers. As, however, the isthmian government is almost entirely without military resources, it looks as if the natives must be using their famous hats for telephone purposes.

A CODE CALAMITY.

All the work done by the Code Commissioners during the past six years at an expense to the public of about $150,000 has gone for naught, for the Supreme Court has not only knocked out the new codes but has made it impossible under our present system to secure the needed revision of our laws. The rock that shattered to pieces the fabric that had been so carefully constructed was the one feared from the start—the constitutional provision declaring that every act shall embrace but one subject which shall be expressed in its title, and that no law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title but that in such case the revised or section amended shall be re-enacted and published at length as revised or amended.

When the Commission was first organized this very question was taken up and investigated. The Commissioners were never for a moment in ignorance of the pending danger but an examination of the procedure in other States led them to believe that their work would be sustained and they therefore went ahead. Probably they were figuring that the Supreme Court realizing the necessity of having the Codes revised would strain a point in their favor but that they erred fatally in this regard is shown by the unanimity of opinion expressed by the Bench.

What now can be done? The only way to secure the revision is the one pointed out by the Supreme Court, that is to say, the passage of separate enactments and fully publishing the same. It is patent that with the thousands of sections to be dealt with, each meaning under the decision, the passage of a complete enactment, no legislature at its regular session can undertake the work, for to do so would mean the exclusion of all other business. Furthermore, the regular session would, for this task alone, have to be continued far beyond its sixty day limit and the members would resent very much having to sit without pay under such conditions. The only recourse therefore seems to be a special session and the question is, where will the Governor be found who will be willing to call it. To do so would mean a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars and as each executive is anxious to make an economical record it is certain that they will all fight shy of the proposition. Of course the matter could be reached by a constitutional amendment but that would take many years to bring about and furthermore it would be dangerous from other standpoints to change the provision that would have to be revised.

It looks therefore as if we will have to "grin and bear it." The old codes are in a terrible condition but as there seems no way out of the difficulty we will have to put up with them as best we may. The blow falls with great severity, not only upon the legal fraternity that has been hoping for a release from the former complications, but also on the law publishing houses which will lose a vast sum of money through printing the expensive editions now left on their hands.

Portland, Oregon, is going to hold an exposition four years hence. Those who may figure on going to it had better start in laying aside money for a rainy day.

An Objecting Parent.

The methods of public school instruction, as applied in New Work City, do not always meet the approbation of the parents of the pupils, as was evidenced the other day, when a German woman of commanding figure strode into the school and approaching the principal, demanded:

"What it is, a lobster?"

The principal politely explained that a lobster was a species of shell fish....

"Vell, how many legs has it, dis lobster?"

The number of legs was stated.

"Vell, I work me for a hurry, and if your teacher cannot find better dings than to ask my boy Jakey how many legs has it, a lobster, and make him come home in bodder his fadder mit questions, 'What it is, a lobster?' it is pad peesness.—Youth's Companion....

HOW TO KEEP YOUR HUSBAND AT HOME.

SOME CLEVER SUGGESTIONS TO THE OAKLAND WIVES — WOMAN WHO KNOWS TELLS HOW TO WORK THE HOME CHARM.

HOME, Oct. 11, 1901.

My dear Jennie: Replying to your letter of inquiry as to the best method of helping a husband—by which I presume you mean to infer his affectionate regard for you, my adice, covering an experience of some twenty years, is to feed him. Feed him early and feed him late, and if he wakes up at any period during his regular sleeping hours, don't give him a dose of paregoric, like you would the baby, under similar circumstances, but have a red hot tamale or some other dainty and similarly digestible article waiting by the bedside to tickle his palate. Never fail to pamper his appetite, and he will not stray very far from the portals of home.

To be sure, he will take little incursions into the realms where he roamed when fancy free and before he knew you, but he will always return in due time if you keep the pot boiling to his fancy at home. There is an old story about a woman who tried to keep her husband in nights by setting up a bar in her dining-room, for home consumption only, but the plan failed, for no other reason than that there wasn't sawdust on the floor. It was like going over to San Francisco to listen to grand opera on Carmen nights—if you don't find your neighbor smelling of garlic you know something is wrong. In fact, it lacked a certain—well, say style, so dear to the heart of the average man.

The lady even hired a phonograph to spiel off stories noted for their racy flavor, but all to no purpose—the husband would go out to spend his evenings, and the wife finally gave it up in despair.

Then she began another experiment with his appetite, and it worked like a charm.

He's a gouty old man now, and owner of a pronounced corporation, but he's a home body, and thinks his wife's great. Howbeit, if your husband is worth a cent more than ten thousand dollars, don't bother yourself about consulting his appetite—it isn't worth while, for men are born with pronounced nomonistic tendencies, and its only the direst poverty which keeps them from indulging in feminine society other than their own. But whatever happens, do not proceed to make a door mat of yourself. A married man is the easiest spoiled animal in the world, and he'll think he's "it" on the slightest provocation. It doesn't take much of an inducement for him to throw his socks in one corner of the room when he undresses, shy his boots after them, hang his necktie and collar over a picture, straddle his pants over the back of the rocker, put his coat and vest in the only other chair in the room, and dump his underclothing in the middle of the floor—he probably did that at home, while his mother went round picking up things after him, for that tendency of the sort of female they call the "womanly woman," to efface herself, is only equalled by the readiness with which her husband and children adapt themselves to her standard. He kindly allows her to wait on him and then goes off and makes "goo goo" eyes to the first pretty woman he meets, who will look at him. Men are queer creatures, and have been known to follow—always of course, at respectable distance—a prettily turned ankle or rounded arm for blocks in hopes of catching a bewitching glance from the owner thereof.

But, as I said before, he'll be pretty apt, like the chickens, to come home to roost, if the cookery suits him. So, my dear, if you are not skilled in culinary art, put on a pretty bib and tie yourself to one of the many cooking schools and surprise him by your wonderful art in preparing things to eat. Your hopefully,

ELIZABETH.

DON'T HURT SOME.

But Coffee Certainly Ruins Some of the Most Highly Organized People.

"One year I lived where the water was very bitter with iron and I could not bear to drink it, so I began drinking coffee three times a day.

"Gradually I noticed an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach and more or less constipation. In a few months I began to lie awake at night long after I had retired.

"This increased, until I never thought of going to sleep before 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, and then only after getting out of bed and walking the floor for an hour.

"I was talking of my nervous state with a friend, who suggested that perhaps it was the coffee I had been using. She felt quite sure it was, and stated that coffee would not stay on her stomach at all, but as she felt she must have a hot drink for breakfast she had been using Postum Food Coffee. She said she didn't like Postum particularly well, and at breakfast the next morning I didn't wonder, when I tasted the flat drink that the servant brought on.

"The same day I was invited to take dinner with another friend, Mrs. Foster. I had visited her often before, and knew she made delicious coffee, so when she asked how I liked her coffee, I said, 'it is just as fine as usual.' She invited me to have another cup, but I said, 'I would not dare to take the second.' 'Oh, you can drink as many cups of this as you like; it won't hurt you. This is Postum Food Coffee. We have been using it a year now, and the little children have all they want, and our family have never been as healthy as in the past year.' 'Postum,' said I doubtfully, 'why the Postum I had this morning didn't taste any more like this than dish water.' 'Perhaps it was not made right,' said my friend. 'I have known more than one person to be turned away from Postum because it was poorly made. There is no secret in it; only allow it to boil long enough to bring out the taste, and there you are.' I have been using Postum since and am entirely cured of my trouble. I cannot say too much for it." Grace A. Foster, Omaha, Neb.

The Vanity of Women.

The real trouble with a vast number of women of today, especially the women inhabiting our great cities, is that they are victims of the disease of vanity. They have the disease in an acute form. Formerly a woman was contented to please and to be appreciated by her own family. But with the great increase in personal freedom and the undoubted improvement in physical appearance which has accompanied it, the women of today are cursed with the itch to shine outside of their homes. With this desire has come a general loss of modesty and a lamentable shrinkage of that self respect and pride of womanhood which used to be cherished by all pure women. Women crowd into the artistic professions because they give them the best opportunity of advertising and displaying their physical attractions. Every year adds to the army of handsome girls who tumble upon the public platforms only to tumble off again. In nine cases out of ten the principal, and as a rule the only justification these women have for obtruding themselves upon the stage is that they are pleasing to the eye, and in their hearts they know this to be so.—J. Stanley Little in London Chronicle.

A Third of Our Time in Sleeping.

"Tell a man that he has slept twenty years and he will give you a pitying stare," remarked the man with a mania for statistics, "but it's a fact. The man who has reached the age of 60 has spent one-third of his life, or twenty years, in slumber, and if a man is lucky enough to live until he is 75 he has Rip Van Winkle beaten to a standstill. The average person sleeps eight hours a day, or exactly one-third of his day's life. Again, if you abruptly informa man of 60 that he has stowed a herd of cattle under his belt in his time he will put you down as a third-year man at an insane asylum. Figures, however, don't lie, and you can give him a statistical knock-out. A healthy man eats, on a conservative estimate, one pound of meat every day of his life, and in sixty years he will devour 21,900 pounds. Allowing 1,000 pounds as the average weight of a beeve, you have twenty-two cattle, a pretty respectable herd, I think."—Philadelphia Record.

Wrinkles Come

To many a face which should still be smooth and fair. Worry doesn't bring them. There are no cares and anxieties to furrow the face. They are the signs of physical suffering, graven by the hand of Pain. It is the saddest result of the diseases which affect the womanly organs that they write plainly the sad record of suffering on the face and form. The skin becomes sallow, the cheeks are sunken, the eyes look dull, the body falls away. No woman who values her health or good looks should neglect to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the womanly organs. It cures irregularity, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It lights up the eye, brightens the complexion, and rounds out the sunken curves of the body.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for female weakness," writes Mrs. Susannah Permenter, of Pauls Store, Shelby Co., Texas. "I was troubled with bearing down pains in my back and hips six years, and I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. I tried his 'Favorite Prescription' and six bottles cured me. I feel like a new person, and I thank Dr. Pierce for my health. Life is a burden to any one without health. I have told a great many of my friends about the great medicines I took."

GOVERNOR GAGE'S CHANCES ARE LOOKING BETTER.

SEEMS TO BE WELL IN THE LEAD IN THE GUBERNATORIAL RACE — CANDIDATES FOR PLACES ON THE REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

Special to the Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 12.—Three or four weeks ago, while discussing in this corespondence the many radical changes that have occurred in the Supreme Court fights during the past few months, attention was called to the surprising ups and downs that so frequently attend a candidacy. And now another notable case is in evidence.

When Governor Gage started out last year to secure renomination, his most bitter enemies were willing to concede that he had the situation at his mercy. They took note of the strong alliances perfected by the administration, the way the party machine was at his disposal and the opportunities whereby he could improve his position, and then shaking their heads mournfully they admitted that he had the "works."

Two weeks ago these same individuals were gleefully reciting how Gage was an impossibility and how the Republican party could not afford to give him the nomination. They said that his attitude on the strike as expressed in his letter to the Board of Trade had killed him off completely, as not a mercantile interest would be for him and the labor end alone was not strong enough to do him any good.

And now, what! Governor Gage stock has jumped up to premium quotations again for his arbitration of the great lock-out has made him a central figure for both capital and labor and has assured him the support of both these elements. The result is that his renomination is again conceded even more completely than before and those who like to warm up to the winning side are hurrying to put themselves on record so that they can do the "I was with you" act when later on the loaves and fishes are dispensed.

The Governor thoroughly realizes, too, where he stands. He was awake to the dangers that immediately followed his answer to the San Francisco merchants and now that the troubles have all been dissipated by one master stroke he is going to be careful that nothing will put him in a false position again—that is if he can help it. Of course there is no telliing what will happen in the ten months that will intervene before the Convention is held but it can be put down as a sure thing that not a leaf will get away from his present laurels if he can help it.

As regards the rest of the State ticket it can be said that with the exception of the Supreme Justice very little is being done. It is true that a number of candidates are reaching out in different directions but they cannot accomplish much, as until the question of which of the candidates on the head end of the ticket will win is better settled than it is at present, nothing much can be done on the line of combinations.

THE SUPREME JUSTICES.

The judges and their friends are of course working tooth and nail and as the days roll along it looks as if sooner or later Garroutte will be forced into the Flint Camp. He is extremely anxious to avoid such a possiblity and if he could have his own way would remain strictly neutral, though in view of how things are going it does not seem that that can be. It seems to be settled for instance that the party machinery will be exerted in behalf of Judge Beatty's renomination as Chief Justice and that being so Garroutte will be compelled to tie up with Flint or else quit altogether for he has declared that with him it is a case of Chief Justice or nothing.

On the outside, the work undertaken by Sweeney in the North and Oster and Shaw in the South lights up the horizon to the exclusion of all the other candidates, though occasionally the name of Judge Angelotti of Marin is heard as an aspirant who might succeed in breaking in in the event of a deadlock. Though the impression appears to prevail that Judge Harrison, one of the retiring justices, is even beyond consideration such is not the case by any means for he has many strong friends, especially among the legal fraternity and they are determined to fight it out for him to the last.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

The Lieutenant-Governorship is an open issue at this time. It appears to be conceded that if Senator Cutter of Yuba wants it he can have it, for apart from his personal strength the combination of a Governor from the South and a Lieutenant-Governor from the North would be a very happy one. However, he has not yet declared himself upon the subject, for the politicians up his way appear to be willing to renominate him for the Senate, a position that carries far more power than does the Lieutenant-Governorship.

If Senator Cutter does not want the prize there is a strong possibility that it will be urged upon Alameda County, for there is a desire to have the banner Republican County directly represented upon the State ticket. W. R. Davis has been mentioned but has declined as it was but natural he would do, for the gubernatorial bee is still in the Davis hive and he does not want to make any move that might result in driving it away altogether.

The name of Charles Snook also crops up whenever this particular subject is under consideration, while another element advances a plan that it is claimed would kill two birds with one stone. Over in Alameda Senator Taylor and Assemblyman Knowland are battling away for the Senatorial nomination and some think it would be a nice stroke of politics to get the Lieutenant-Governorship for Taylor, and thus harmonize everything along the banks of the Tidal Canal.

CURRY ALL RIGHT.

Charley Curry seems reasonably safe for another term as Secretary of State for which, by the way, he is an avowed candidate. Although his duties have compelled him to live in Sacramento he has kept a close watch upon his fences in San Francisco, for he runs down this way once in awhile, makes the rounds, shakes hands with the boys,, sets them up and then heads back for the Capital again. In this way he keeps in touch with push elements while as far as the business people are concerned he has no fears, for everyone who has had occasion to do business with the State department will vouch that it was never in better condition than it has been since Curry took charge. All of this counts and as in addition he has lots of strength up north and is in a position to tie up hard and fast with the party machine, he looks like a sure winner from a Republican standpoint, in fact it is not likely that anyone will dispute the nomination with him.

COLGAN'S USUAL CINCH.

On the Controllership Ed Colgan has that cinch known as double-distilled. In the past he has generally let it be whispered around that he is a probability for Governor and in that way has forced some of the hands that might perchance be turned against him, but he does not deem that anything of that sort is necessary this time, so he is an out and out candidate for Controller and that is all there is to it. There has been some talk to the effect that the relations between Colgan and the Governor are not as friendly as they might be and that for that reason his scalp might possibly be in danger. The Governor, however, is too good a politican to want to engage in any other fights than his own; for if Colgan were turned down on his account he would be facing that much more opposition from the Controller and his friends. It is safe to say that the Governor will keep hands off as regards the rest of the ticket, especially so as all these yarns about his troubles with State officials are very much exaggerated and in fact are almost unfounded.

THE TREASURER.

The Treasurership looks like an office that an outsider can aspire for with the hope of getting, for it will unquestionably be used as a "location" nomination. If Judge Oster of San Bernardino succeeds in his ambitions to get a Supreme Court nomination that will of course effectually dispose of whatever ambitions Truman Reeves, the incumbent, may have to succeed himself, while on the other hand if Oster is beaten Reeves may land back again as a concession to that section of the State.

FORD FEELS SAFE.

Attorney General Tirey L. Ford is sanguine that the early canvass he is making in his own interests will prove successful, for he is receiving assurances of support from many directions. Once in a while rumors flit across the bay like the one that was in evidence recently to the effect that George Reed of Oakland might get the nomination, but when they are run down they invariably prove to have nothing in them and in nine cases out of ten are merely suggestions made by third parties. Ford will get the support of the mining counties and as he has been busy establishing himself here since he moved into San Francisco six years ago he will be well entrenched when the time comes to show his strength.

SURVEYOR WRIGHT'S PLANS.

Unless the health of M. J. Wright, the present Surveyor-General should vastly improve it is not likely that he will seek to go on the ticket again for he would not be able to undergo the rigors of a canvass. He is much better than he was a couple of months ago and when he made the rounds of the Palace Hotel lobby the other day looked fairly well but he admits that he is a long way from feeling all right. It is more than probable therefore that his place will be in the balance next year for the benefit of those who want to break in upon the inner circle of the present administration.

ROOT IN A FIGHT.

George Root, Clerk of the Supreme Court, has undoubtedly got a fight upon his hands this time, for there are some antagonisms to be overcome that will take a lot of good politics to get away with. It is not that anyone has aught against Root personally—the troubles are all purely political, arising in nearly every instance out of disputes over the patronage at his disposal. Root has stood very firm on these issues from the start, refusing to let an appointment go to any quarter that was not acceptable to those who gave him his nomination and this has brought down upon him the wrath of the house of Spreckels in all its fulness.

Then too the source of Root's nomination three years ago tells part of the story. His place upon the ticket is said to have been one of the chief conditions of the retirement of Flint from the Governational fight and it is also known that Aleck Duncan with his Mendocino county delegation stood pat upon the same proposition. This time Flint will be in a somewhat different position as he will undoubtedly keep up his canvas until the eleventh hour, though, of course, it is not beyond the possibilities that everything may wind up in another compromise and that Root will be carried along as he was before. It is a good fighting chance for him anyhow and he is going to stay with it for all that it is worth.

KIRK'S POSITION.

The fate of Superintendent of Schools Kirk is unquestionably one of those that can be placed upon the doubtful list for obvious reasons. In the first place it is rarely that anyone can succeed in holding that particular office two terms, especially of late years. This is singular, for of all places upon the State ticket it is one to which Civil Service principles might well apply, as to retire a Superintendent at the end of his first four years means getting rid of him just as he is beginning to be useful.

The school service, however, has always been a great breeding place for jealousies and antagonisms and Superintendent Kirk is getting the full benefit of everything in that line. It is already being whispered how the teachers are dead set against him and are determined to fight him, from all of which the conclusions that Kirk is going to bump into a lot of opposition are easy to draw. No one has as yet made a bid for his place but it is safe to say that candidates will be six deep later on.

THE PRINTERSHIP.

Whether or not Al Johnston, the present State Printer, will serve another term is problematical— the chances are, though, that he will. When the bill appeared before the legislature making the office appointive the impression prevailed that Johnston would be named by the Governor to serve out his present four years and that later on Frank Leavitt of Oakland would be his successor.

The pocketing of the measure, however, ended all that talk and since that time Leavitt has come out with a positive declaration that he is not a candiate for State Printer but wants to go back to the Senate. Everything therefore points to a renomination of Johnston who is in favor with the powers that be and who has succeeded in doing good politics since he has been in office, in addition to keeping his department in top notch condition.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS.

In the camps of the Railroad Commissioners little has occurred worthy of special note. The presumption is that the incumbents will all want to go back again, for the job is one of the best in the State, and means $4,000 a year, which is $1,000 more than is allotted to most of the State offices.

In the First District it is understood that despite the strength he may gather in by his candidacy for Governor, Edson will have opposition, for Will Crooks, who is in the banking business at Benicia, is understood to be after the nomination. Edson, however, is likely to put up a hot fight for it and as he is backed by the Northern Counties and has plenty of money he will be a hard man to get away with.

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

Membership on the Board of Equalization is in about the same condition as the Railroad Commissionerships all the incumbents seeking renomination with a fight already in sight in one district. The early contest is in the Fourth where Supervisor Cherry of San Diego and A. G. Kendall of Bernardino have declared themselves in the entry list as against Foland, the present representative of the district.

HERE AND THERE.

Assemblyman H. R. McNeil of Rohnerville is down for a brief vacation.

Senator Lardner of Placer county is among the host of politicians in evidence here just now.

State Central Committeeman La Baree got in from Weaverville during the week and created great excitement by getting lost. In going from the Grand Hotel to the Crocker Building he unfortunately turned in the wrong direction and wound up in Butchertown, where he was found two days later. He has nearly recovered from the shock.

Speaker "Corney" Pendleton wafted into town Wednesday and has been calling the roll ever since. The well-paved sidewalk on Easy street, where he resides nowadays, have added so much to his avoirdupois that he is seriously thinking of walking back to Los Angeles and donating the money he would have spent for railroad fare to the Stone ransom fund.

Judge Luce of San Diego, who has been in town for the past week or so, has returned to his Southern headquarters.

Trustee Fehnemann of the Mendocino Asylum is camping at Ukiah nowadays as he is anxious to have the Supervisors build a boulevard from that city to the State insitution. Mr. Fehnemann had an invitation to occupy one of the Ukiah pulpits on Sunday last but declined on account of a severe cold he caught in his feet.

Aleck Duncan, the well-known manipulator of politics in the northern end of the State, but who makes his headquarters here, has gone to Mendocino to look over the situation. Although Mendocino is one of the close counties, they say up that way that they are going to carry it for the Republican ticket next year, and they undoubtedly will, if they can avoid any factional troubles at the polls.

Governor Gage is in town. He arrived on the Owl Thursday morning.

Congressman Frank Coombs has taken rooms in the city and will make it his headquarters for awhile.

M. H. de Young is very much in evidence since his return to town. Although he is understood to be a candidate for United States Senator, no one has so far been able to draw a line where he is doing any work in that regard. So at present he can be classified with the dark horse brigade.

Senator Stratton has been passing the week in Oregon, where he has some important legal business. He is expected home tonight.

Ex-Assemblyman McDonald is making the rounds among his old-time friends.

Senator Davis is still in evidence in town. He has been closing up the Sweepstake mine transaction.

Judge Lawlor leaves today for a trip to his old home in the East. It is his first visit there for a great many years. As honors have come thick upon him of late, his relatives and friends have been clamoring that he pay them a visit.

FINAL CHAPTER IN THE LIFE OF ABE MAJORS.

BETTY MARTIN MAKES SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST TWO MEMBERS OF THE SCHOOL BOARD — A GOOD WORD FOR THE LOCAL MERCHANTS.

The final chapter in the life of Abe Majors is closed, at least so far as this world is concerned, for life imprisonment means nothing more nor less than living death. Still, "while there's life there's hope," and that adage seems to apply with peculiar force to Abe Majors, who has some way or other always managed to have influence enough behind him to get out of bad predicaments. There has been a great deal of wasted sympathy spent on this young man, who is a born criminal. It is his birthright, for which he is not responsible. His career is an interesting one, from a sociological standpoint, and points not exactly a moral, but to the very grave necessity of a deeper study on the part of the world at large, of criminalogy. The proper method of treatment of offenders against the world's good has not yet been discovered. On one side is often the cold, perfunctory carrying out of the law, and on the other a sentimental sympathy, untempered by exact knowledge of the criminal.

In the case of Abe Majors, the fulfillment of the law, whereby he was sentenced to serve the state ten years at Folsom prison, would have been merciful indeed, compared to the fate which lay before him outside. His father was a cold-blooded murderer, and paid for it with his life on the gallows. His mother, who is now a raving maniac, is said by those who know her personally, to have been a woman, not of evil intent, but weak and vacillating, and with ideas on morality but poorly developed,

Everybody in Oakland knows how Abe Majors and Bert Wilmore, neither of whom were yet seventeen years old, committed various crimes of theft here, and how they were sentenced to the State prison at Folsom.

If both these boys had been allowed to serve out their sentences, at least two states in the Union would be richer plus the cost of many trials, and several persons now underneath the sod would be pursuing their daily avocation.

Popular sympathy was aroused on behalf of the boys, however, largely on account of their youth and handsome faces, and the good women of Oakland and San Francisco worked with a will toward their release, which was finally accomplished and the boys allowed out on parole. They were both learning a trade at the prison—Majors that of stone cutter, and that he had already made considerable advance in it is evidenced by a handsomely cut piece of granite, the work of his hands, near the foundation of one of the magnificent guard houses overlooking the American river, the hills opposite, and the sweep of road and gardens in front of the prison.

The many ladies who interested themselves in securing the release of the boys were known socially, both here and in San Francisco, and for their kind hearts may heaven bless them, but in this case their zeal was worthy of a better cause, for no sooner were the boys released than they both immediately proceeded to get into serious mischief again. There is a romantic side to the story, which never has, and never will be printed, although the loves of criminals are just as interesting and much fuller of incident than those of ordinary, well behaved citizens. Besides the romances hinted at there are one or two little things which may serve to show what association and environment does for one as well as birth.

While at Folsom young Wilmore fell in with a convict, familiarly known there by his fellows as Big Sullivan. This man was serving a term of fifty years for murder, but through the efforts of friends was released on parole exactly two days after Bert Wilmore, and it is a matter of criminal history how the two lost no time in getting together and committing burglary and safe-cracking over in Alameda, whereby Bert Wilmore was shot and killed, and Sullivan captured, tried and sentenced to life imprisonment at Folsom

In the Majors' case, there was a brother residing at Auburn, several miles above the prison, who had as a wife a very nice young girl—a Salvation Army lassie. This brother Archie, who had heretofore led a good honest life, fell into the way of visiting Abe, and upon the latter's release he persuaded Archie to forsake his wife and follow the fortunes of a highwayman. While engaged in this diverting sort of life Archie was killed by a police posse over there in Utah, and Abe, who was likewise engaged, shot and killed Captain Brown of the Mormon State. The judge sentenced him to death for this, but with his usual luck he secured a new trial and the sentence was changed to life imprisonment. The chances are that before long women will be sending him flowers and working to secure his release. If he ever does get out, he will lose no time in returning to his old calling. Majors has still another life to answer for, though not exactly through any act of his. A fellow prisoner at Folsom lost his life through friendship for him, which led to a quarrel and finally murder within the prison walls. Had these two boys been allowed to serve out the sentences for their first crimes, how much money and bloodshed might have been saved.

Hugh Craig is not the only one whose boys would like to go quail hunting during vacation—there are others—lots of 'em not wearing breeches. I naturally don't belong to the hunting fraternity, but when it come to eating a nice plump little quail, I can do my share, and also fully appreciate the plight of the young hunters who want to go shooting, but can't on account of school. If ever there was a bird that tempted guns, it is a quail. They are all such saucy, pert looking, fat looking things, and they stand with their heads perched to one side, with bright eyes fixed on the gun in most knowing fashion, and then just about the time the trigger is pulled how they break for the bush in wherring flight!

A late vacation holds many advantages that an early one does not, chief among them being the fact that it would give so many children an opportunity to work in the fruit and earn money. Hundreds of children do this in the Sacramento Valley every year, and many of them earn their clothing and entire spending money that way. Ever so many girls and boys are at work right now packing and culling grapes for the market. A few years ago all this work was done by Chinese, then later by Japs, but as popular sentiment was roused against their employ, women and children entered the field, with the result that the work is just as satisfactory, and the money kept for home circulation.

What a shame it is that the Oakland High school is losing so many good teachers through payment of niggardly salaries.

Professor Meads will be missed, and it seems like mighty poor policy to cut the salary of any competent teacher down to the merest stipend. Trained labor in every other line nowadays brings substantial rewards in the way of good salaries, and lowering the salaries of school teachers will of necessity lower the teachers' standard of excellence. No man or woman of ability nowadays can afford to train brain and heart in a work which requires all that is best, and receive in return a beggarly little sum insufficient to meet the demands made socially upon a man of education and standing

If the board of education would show half as much zeal in economizing in some other directions, and let the teachers' salaries alone, it would be better for the community at large. That mutual admiration society, however, is too much occupied with other matters to give intelligent heed to the best interests of the community It is much easier work to chop off twenty-five dollars here and there from some unlucky teacher's salary than it is to refrain from unnecessary extravagance in the way of purchase.

Apropos, there was a little story circulated about the typewriters purchased recently for the Polytechnic school. Two of them failed to materialize at the proper time, and inquiry revealed the fact that one was at the home of one of the member's of the board, while the other was in the business office of another. Typewriters are extremely useful affairs nowadays, whether one's daughter wants to learn "typing" or whether one only wants a little law work done.

It wouldn't be a bad plan for the business men of Oakland to follow the example set by the merchants of New Bedford. At the latter place a committee of merchants, appointed at a meeting of business men, sent a communication to the Women's Club, setting forth the desirability of Club members doing shopping in their own town. So many ladies living in Oakland shop over in San Francisco. It seems a pity, for the stores here are wonderfully attractive, and certainly quite as reasonable in their prices as any over on the other side. I have a notion that many times that little plea of wanting to "shop" over in the city is only an excuse to cross the bay and indulge in sight seeing on the other side. However, hundreds of dollars are spent over in San Francisco daily, which might with better advantage be used at home. The boats are hourly crowded with ladies carrying parcels, and delivery wagons are kept busy plying between the two cities. Not only do many Oaklanders buy clothing and groceries in San Francisco, but household furniture as well. All this is to be deplored when one considers the high class of merchandise displayed in the show windows of our merchants, and their never ceasing catering to the wants of the community. Evil is often "wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart," and it may be that attention once being called to the matter will help keep trade within our doors

MEDDLER TELLS OF A CENTURY CLUB QUARREL.

BISHOPS ARE BEING ENTERTAINED IN ALL DIRECTIONS — SOME NEW ENGAGEMENTS OF INTEREST—WEDDINGS RECORDED DURING THE WEEK.

Episcopalianism is in the air. To be anything else is to be distinctly out of it and to hear us talk you would think everyone of us was a church woman, for we think in the exalted diction of the Book of Common Prayer. Eminent divines fill the street cars, and so wealthy are the Episcopalians and so unfailing their hospitality that few of the visitors were left to the cold comfort of even the best hotels but have been warmly welcomed to luxurious guest chambers, where all the comforts of home are at their disposal for the all too brief intervals between sessions, for the Convention, works its delegates pretty hard and pretty constantly, and there are committee meetings and things between.

As I told you last week Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Requa are entertaining Bishop and Mrs. Whittaker. Bishop Whittaker was once Bishop of Nevada and knew the Requas well they all lived in Nevada during the exciting and profitable days of the Comstock lode. If I mistake not there is a large girls' school in Reno named for the Bishop. Now the Whittakers reside in Philadelphia, for the Bishop has been called to a larger and more important sphere. The Whittakers were guests of honor at a reception given to them by Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Woods of San Francisco last week. The Woods are also old Nevadans, and on that day all the Californian and Nevada friends of pioneer days called. Mrs. Woods wore a charming gown of pale yellow, with some beautiful lace, and Mrs. Whittaker wore soft gray. Mrs. Requa and Mrs. Long assisted in receiving the guests.

Mrs. Oscar Long is prominent in the Philippine Court at the Missionary Exhibit which the Woman's Auxiliary of the church is making at the Clark Crocker home across the bay and which remains open next week. Afternoon tea at the Missionary Exhibit is quite a delightful function and none serves it with more grace than Mrs. John F. Swift who presides with such dignity over the Chinese Court.

On Thursday of this week, Mrs. Isaac Requa was hostess at a delightful tug party given on the tug General Slocum. About fifty of the most eminent of the visitors were entertained and luncheon was served on the deck for it was a perfectly windless day--not often granted us here. There were no less than seven Bishops among the guests and everyone had a delightful time. The Slocum went outside the Golden Gate, so that the guests had the best possible view of the harbor and the outer bay and they went as close as possible to Seal Rock. Then the Slocum let off a mighty blast, and the seals, no doubt mistaking it for Gabriel and his trump, scrambled down off the sunshiny rock and into deep water as fast as their flippers could carry them. It was a great sight for the Eastern visitors and if we manage to hold off the cold and fog a few days longer they will carry back with them the impression that our climate is absolutely tropical. At last I understand why we had all that cold rain in September--the Powers of the Universe, intimately acquainted with all these Bishops and no doubt interested in them, made September cold that October might be balmy. Perfectly plain, isn't it?

Tomorrow there is to be a celebration at St. Paul's. All the Episcopalian Sunday School children will gather to be addressed by Mr. Thomas and Mr. Duhring of Philadelphia. It will be a great occasion for the youngsters. Afterwards the entire party will go to Highlands to spend a day and a night, and there will be quite a house party at the big mansion—no less than fifteen guests. Mrs. Thomas was detained in Philadelphia by the illness of a member of her family and arrived from the East yesterday. Early in the week the Requas will give a big dinner party in honor of Bishop and Mrs. Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and their other guests.

Just one word more and I am done with this subject, as the clergymen say when they are over the prelude to their main discourse. The reception to the Bishops and the clerical and lay delegates at the Hopkins' Art Association's home on Wednesday night was really a very swell affair—quite a fashionable crush indeed. It was a little bit more indiscriminate than I had expected and yet all the best people were there, and if there were others who were not quite so best, it really didn't matter.

The tout ensemble was effective. There were some dashing gowns there. I can tell you. Some four thousand people in all, they say, and I can well believe it, for the entire house was packed and it was hot to suffocation. The receiving line stood in the Main Art Gallery and those who had the right sort of connections were presented to Bishop Potter and Mr. Morgan—the great guns of the convention. The women who were receiving looked very charming in their decollete frocks and with all their jewels on parade. Mrs. Will Crocker, to my mind, was the most distingue, for she has a high-bred face and I love the narrow carmine line of her lips. Her pearls and diamonds were very beautiful. The Princess Poniatowski was radiant, too, and a close second to her sister. Then there were Mrs. John F. Swift, Mrs. Hearst, Mrs. Sanborn, Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, Mrs. Horace Hill and a host of other dames less notable, and some dowagers in evening dress, so terribly ugly that they reminded me of Du Maurier's pictures of beefy old English women. Mrs. John F. Swift wore a square-necked black gown, with some white net folded in about her really beautiful neck and throat, and some pearls that were remarkable even in that display of jewels for their whiteness and size. There was a string of large pearls which supported an amethyst pendant, also surrounded with pearls, and several large pearl pins further ornamented the corsage. Mrs. Hearst wore lavender with a pearl collar with diamond bars and many other diamonds. The other gowns I did not notice—they were lost in the general shuffle.

There were many people there from Alameda county, and among them I happened to see and chat with Mrs. Emma Shafter Howard, Miss Bertha Monroe Rickoff, Miss Mabel Craft, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bray, Major and Mrs. Albright, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Colburn, Rev. and Mrs. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wheeler and many others.

I wonder if it has occurred to anybody in reading the undoubtedly interesting proceedings of these Episcopal somebodies, how much has been said for creed in this convention and how little, how very little, for the big broad humanities. There's a tremendous amount of talk as to whether divorced people ought to remarry or not, but nothing at all about the Filipinos being butchered in far-off lands and their villages burned, including the homes of non-combatants, mind you. Oh, yes, I know you'll say that nipa huts can be rebuilt in a day, but nipa huts are "home" in that latitude. Nor have I seen anything of protest concerning the Boer being swept from the face of the earth and a few other kindred abuses that men and women with hearts to feel and eyes to see and ears to hear could point out to you. It seems to me that it would be a less catastrophe for a few divorced persons to remarry than for the Filipinos and the Boers to be enslaved or maltreated, but of course this is but a personal opinion. Evidently it is not shared by the churchly powers that be.

To come down to other things from this high plane whither we have wandered, the Ida Belle Palmer wedding was one of the most delightful ever celebrated in Oakland. Of course, the bride and her sister are fair to see, and they looked charming, but the pleasantest thing about the wedding and the feature we all remarked was the delightful friendliness of the whole gathering—based on the fact that everyone there was a friend to everybody else. The Wheatons and the Palmers know the same people and the guests were most congenial, and thereby hangs the secret of every successful entertainment.

Mrs. Davenport, the lady physical culturist, whose lectures at Ebell attracted considerable attention, has involved the Century Club in a peck of trouble concerning which the club members are keeping a judicious silence.

Mrs. Davenport talked before the Century Club on Wednesday, and during the course of her remarks she defined personal magnetism as stored-up vitality, or something worse, and her definition so affected the nerves of certain Century women that they rose up and took issue with her. Chief among them was Mrs. Al Gerberding, but there were others. Mrs. Davenport was furious, accused them of being ignoramuses, and the talk became so fast and furious that the gavel of the President, Mrs. Merrill, could not keep order. At last the hubbub died down and Mrs. Merrill called on the members to show courtesy to their guest.

Mrs. Davenport and Mrs. Kincaid have already come to verbal blows. Mrs. Kincaid is the woman member of the San Francisco Board of Education, you know, and she and Mrs. Davenport talked it out very plainly. Mrs. Kincaid told Mrs. Davenport that the way she talked might be called plain speaking in European countries, but in America it went under the more unpleasant term of vulgarity. And there you are!

The death of Miss Shreve of Alameda, a young girl of eighteen, will put several prominent families into mourning and will make quite a difference in winter festivities in the Encinal City, as Mrs. Shreve usually entertains considerably.

In speaking of the Palmer-Wheaton wedding I forgot to note that after their return from the wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton will occupy the Sumner Bugbee house, though they will spend a month as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton Sr., while the house is being prepared. I can imagine that Mrs. Wheaton and her daughter-in-law will be great friends—they both have such charming dispositions.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Landers and Miss Berenice Landers have left their country home in San Leandro and have gone to San Francisco for the winter. They will occupy the Avery McCarthy house there—that family having been broken up by the divorce courts. Miss Gladys Piver, a very handsome girl somewhat resembling her cousin, Berenice Landers, has been staying with her mother with her relatives, the Landers, and will go to the Palace Hotel for a while. Miss Pivers' engagement to Whitaker Ray of the Whitaker Ray Company has just been announced and the wedding will take place before Christmas at the Palace Hotel. Miss Piver is a stunning young woman and dresses beautifully.

A good many people were tremendously surprised over the announced engagement of Arthur Spear to Miss India Scott, niece of the wealthy Mrs. William Willis of San Francisco. Miss Scott is not wealthy, but she is quite good-looking and her aunt who is childless regards her as a daughter, so her prospects in life are secured. Arthur Spear has been a man about town for so many years that it will seem very strange for him to settle down, I should think, but maybe he doesn't intend to settle down. Some Benedicts don't, I've been told.

The biggest engagement of the week, socially considered, is that of Miss Georgia Hopkins and Fred McNear. Of course every one has known that they were engaged for over a year, and I believe I have more than hinted at it several times in these columns as indeed every other social writer has done, but at last it is announced and is public property, and the marriage, I hear, will follow shortly. Miss Georgia is the last of the Hopkins girls, though there is still a cousin. Georgia I think, is the prettiest, though, like her sisters, she is most painfully thin. She is also the youngest of the three graces and has officiated as bridesmaid and maid of honor at weddings innumerable, notably when her two sisters were married, and also at Mary Scott's wedding. Fred McNear is the third son of G. W. McNear and really there is nothing particular about him, except that he is an all-around good fellow. He doesn't look so terribly amiable, but you can't always tell by looks, and as amiability is the strongest trait in the McNear family, I dare say he partakes of the family characteristic.

Then there is Irene Baker who is to marry Dr. Grissim of San Jose. Miss Baker is an exceedingly pretty girl, and dresses beautifully. The doctor, I hear, has a good practice. Miss Baker is not very robust and for a long time it was feared that she was to be an invalid, but she is quite restored now. Wedding bells will be jingling all over Oakland, will they not?

The latest fad to strike our girls is the literary one, and now Marietta Havens, Ethel Valentine, the Fores and Maud Edith Pope are going to give literary luncheons and teas, where they may talk of the latest books, instead of the latest scandal and later write original stories to read. I don't know about the original stories, but I do know that the reading cannot help but do them good and will make these girls a delightful innovation in the constant stream of small and pretty talk that flows and babbles about you at most Oakland entertainments.

But I was on the point of forgetting another engagement--that of Miss MacDermot and Captain Crawford of the Navy. Miss MacDermot is an unusual girl though we have not seen much of her—she has travelled so much. I am inclined to think that the younger sister is the more popular of the two girls. Miss MacDermot is not handsome, but she has an abundant crop of the most unusual auburn hair which serves to distinguish her. She also dresses well has an elaborate manner and has a fully matured, almost Spanish figure which reminds one of the voluptious days before the Gringo came.

Miss Flora Belle MacDermot will come out at her sister's wedding, where she will be maid of honor. She is sure to be a success and among her intimate friends are the Kenna girls of East Oakland

Now really, you'll have to let me off, without saying a word about the Fabiola Whist Tournament which was very successful socially and financially. It broke my heart that I didn't win one of those charming prizes--I would have liked several of them--but the prize winners enjoyed themselves so much, that it quite consoled one. Mrs. Frederick Morse was among the prize winners, as was Mrs. Wheaton, and Mrs. Conklin of East Oakland. There were many players from Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco.

Now it is absolutely too warm to write another word, so I'll say good day to you. I've been so faithful in my correspondence to you, why don't some of you write a letter to, Your faithful

MEDDLER?

P. S. They are making bets in San Francisco in the clubs and at the teas that the Peter Martin-Lily Oelrichs wedding will never come off. I understand it is five to one against Peter's chances and no takers. Step up, gentlemen, step up.

CHINESE LUNCHEON.

A whist party and Chinese luncheon was given Thursday noon by Mrs. H. Hoffman at her home, 1074 Twelfth street. After a few games and the distributioon of the four handsome prizes the luncheon was revealed. Places were designated by pretty name-cards and the souvenirs were chopsticks and small Chinese masks. The menu caused great merriment, being tiny rolls of red paper covered with what was apparently Chinese writing. The lady who first deciphered the quaint list of edibles won a prize. A pleasing feature of the luncheon was the presence of Miss Wy Cheng, a tiny Chinese girl in rich apparel, who served the tea. The decorations for the luncheon were designed by Mr. Hoffman. Strings of lanterns, great and small, swayed overhead, and on the table were small figures of warriors and dames in full panoply of war and court dress. One thing that attracted much attention was a beautiful gold embroidered silk curtain that was draped over the doorway. This curtain was the prize given the Chinese last Fourth of July by Consul Ho Yow for their excellent display in the parade and was loaned to Mrs. Hoffman for the luncheon today.

SAY FAREWELL AT THE MOLE.

Southern Pacific Says Friends Cannot Get on Overland Train.

There will be wailing and gnashing of teeth over a new order of the Southern Pacific Company which went into effect yesterday. In the future only those with transportation will be allowed on overland trains.

It has been the custom of friends of those going East to make the trip to the Oakland mole and ride on the overland trains as far as the Sixteenth street station with them. In the same way it is the custom to go to the same depot and ride with friends coming from the East to the mole on their return trip.

Superintendent Frazier issued an order, which went into effect yesterday, allowing only those who carry overland tickets to ride on overland trains, and in the future friends of travelers will have to be satisfied with saying a farewell at the Oakland mole.

BERNARD A. M'DONALD DIES AT DIMOND.

Bernard A. McDonald, for years a sufferer from consumption, succumbed to the wasting disease Thursday night at Dimond, where he had been residing for the last three months. He was a well-known contractor of the city of Hilo in the Hawaiian Islands. The enervating tropical climate proved to be too severe a test upon his vitality, and he was compelled to return to this State, where he had hoped to convalesce to a degree.

He was unmarried and was 37 years of age. He is a brother of J. B. McDonald, the real estate man, and also a brother of Martin McDonald, the coal merchant.

The funeral will be held on October 13. The interment will take place in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The 5 o'clock edition of THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE may be purchased in San Francisco at that hour at 746 Market street, near Grant avenue (Cooper & Co., art stationers); at the ferry building news stands; at the Grand Hotel news stand, and at the Palace Hotel news stand.

TOPICS OF THE HOUR.

From Oakland Saturday Night.

President Roosevelt's real platform is to be found in many of his past speeches,—for the President is one of the most forceful speakers in the nation.

Roosevelt's main motto is adopted from Abraham Lincoln, and he often usese it. "Do the best, if not, then the best possible."

In his Labor Day speech at Chicago a year ago, he said:

"The fundamental law of healthy political life in this great republic is that each man shall in deed and not merely in word be treated strictly on his worth as a man; that each shall do full justice to his fellow, and in return shall exact full justice from him. The one fact which all of us need to keep steadily before our eyes is in the need that performance should square with promise if good work is to be done, whether in the industrial or in the political world."

Roosevelt closed his Labor Day speech with these significant sentences:

"On the whole, we shall all go up or go down together. Some may go up or go down further than others. The rule is that all must have to share in common something of whatever adversity or whatever prosperity is in store for the nation as a whole.

"Let us strive to make the conditions of life such that as nearly as possible each man shall receive the share to which he is honestly entitled, and no more. And let us remember that we can best help ourselves, not at the expense of others, but by heartily working with them for the common good of each and all."

Here are Roosevelt's views on "The Duty of the Rich" expressed in a speech at the dedication of Cornell Medical College, the gift of Colonel Oliver H. Payne:

"Great fortunes are accumulated because of conditions that are obtained under our national life. We have the moral right to demand that great fortunes shall be used for good. It is practically impossible to keep large fortunes intact and at the same time to keep them strictly neutral as between good and evil."

In his campaign for Governor of New York Roosevelt said in one of his speeches:

"If I am elected, so far as in me lies I will see that every branch of the government under me is administered with integrity and capacity, and when I deal with any public servant I shall not be very patient with him if he lacks capacity, and short indeed will be his shrift if he lacks integrity.

"I shall feel most deeply my responsibilities to the people, and I shall do my best to show by my acts that I feel it even more deeply than my words express."

The struggle between languages which has puzzled so many European statesmen is now engaging the attention of the United States in the Philippines. It comes as one of the consequences of foreign conquest that the old language should be displaced by that of the new owner so far as official orders can effect such a change. So we see at this time the attempts to substitute Russian and German for Polish, German for Bohemian and French in Alsace-Lorraine, English for Dutch in South Africa and for Italian and Maltese in Malta, all with the same purpose with which English has been substituted for Spanish in the schools of our own far-away colonies.

Mr. Atkinson, the superintendent of Public Instruction in the Philippines, is very sanguine that the language of the old regime will disappear in the islands under the gradual process of education. At the same time he is compelled by the facts to admit that Spanish is used by only a small part of the population, who speak a variety of native dialects. In view of Spain's poor success in imposing her language upon the people after centuries of occupation of the Philippines, we, in turn, can expect to make painfully slow progress.

Even in the United States, where all the conditions are favorable to the assimilation of foreigners, it has required generations to convert our European immigrants to our own manner of speech. Wherever the foreign element predominates, even in the heart of our large cities, English has made slow headway. In New Mexico, where English has been the official language since annexation more than fifty years ago, only a very small part of the inhabitants of Mexican blood today have the most rudimentary knowledge of English. Wherever they are in the majority they cling to their native tongue, although by law English must be taught in all public schools in the Territory. Across our northern border hundreds of thousands of French Canadians still use only their own patois. Singularly enough the address of welcome to the Duke of Cornwall and York at Quebec and the reply were both worded in French. Experience shows that it is only through the children that a strange population can be taught the use of English, and where one element so vastly outnumbers the other as the Filipinos do the Anglo-Saxons in the Philippines, it is those in the minority who are overborne. If we are going into the business of governing foreign peoples we will probably find it quite as necessary to educate our representatives abroad in the use of foreign tongues as to teach the natives to speak English.

A neighboring newspaper formulates the Oriental trade as follows:

"So far as Japan is concerned, Oriental trade is not at the present time in a very promising condition. When the sobering-off period came after the exaltation following the war with China, the people realized that a sum of money paid as war indemnity had not the lasting qualities of industrial production. The government, which had made large investments, mostly in the way of organizing an army and building a navy, in time perceived the necessity of retrenchment, and, of course, the effect of government retrenchment was to cut off sources of earning a livelihood among the people. The effect is seen in the foreign trade reports of the present year. Imports of foreign products have fallen off for the first half of the current year about 20 per cent, while experts have increased in the same period over 30 per cent. This change in the habits of the Japanese people will bring them out all right in time, but it is disappointing to nations which have been counting on the Japanese market for the sale of their products. It also accounts for the change in the Government policy of restricting emigration. Two or three years ago, in response to representations made by the United States that a large Japanese immigration was not desirable, the Japanese Government promptly responded that it would place a restriction on emigration. But in the last year Japanese immigration has rapidly increased—so rapidly, in fact, that there is a demand in this country that the Chinese exclusion law shall be so amended as to include Japanese as well as Chinese. The Japanese Government is now in the market for a loan of $25,000,000, thus proving its right to full membership in the great family of civilized and highly enlightened nations.

To the Honorable, the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County, Gentlemen: We the undersigned viewers appointed by an order of your Honorable Body, to view and survey a proposed public road from a point on Claremont avenue to the county boundary line between Alameda and Contra Costa counties, as per petition of Daniel McMahon, John Reyes, A. AN ALAMEDA SERGEANT TO SUE FOR LIBEL.

OFFICER KAMP DECLARES HE WILL NOT POSE AS A FOOL.

WAS NOT HELD UP BY TWO GIRLS.

Policeman Declares He Was Not Robbed in Stage in the Mountains.

ALAMEDA, Oct. 12.—Several days ago a story appeared in one of the local papers telling how Sergeant Kamp was held up by two girls while in the mountains.

The story relates how the girls were disguised as highwaymen and with the aid of wooden revolvers held up the stage on which the Sergeant was riding and relieved him of a silver watch and his pocket knife.

When Kamp saw the story he became indignant and declared that it was a falsehood and demanded that the story be retracted.

No attention was paid to the Sergeant's demand for satisfaction, and he has now placed the matter in attorney R. B. Tappan's hands to sue for libel.

The Sergeant says he will stay with the affair, as he does not intend to be made sport of through the paper.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

A NEW, EFFECTUAL AND CONVENIENT CURE FOR CATARRH.

Of catarrh remedies there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies to relieve, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water through the nose would often relieve and the washes, douches, powders and inhalers in common use are very little, if any, better than the old fashioned salt water douche.

The use of inhalers and the application of salves, washes and powders to the nose and throat to cure catarrh is no more reasonable than to rub the back to cure kidney disease. Catarrh is just as much a blood disease as kidney trouble or rheumatism and it cannot be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

To cure catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach an internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to drive the catarrhal poison out of the blood and system, and the new catarrh cure is designed on this plan and the remarkable success of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is because being used internally, it drives out catarrhal infection through action upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman of St. Joseph, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrh sufferers everywhere. He says: "I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchial tubes and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but as I was able to keep up and do a day's work I let it run along until my hearing began to fail me and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh or lose my position as I was clerk and my hearing was absolutely necessary.

"Some of my friends recommended an inhaler, another a catarrh salve but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and bought a package at my drug store. They benefitted me from the start and in less than four months I was completely cured of catarrh although I had suffered nearly all my life from it.

"They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies that I feel I cannot say enough in favor of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

A little book on cause and cure of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., and the tablets are sold by all druggists in the United States and Canada.

BISHOP WILL SPEAK TOMORROW AT BERKELEY.

LARGE MEETING IS PLANNED FOR HEARST HALL DURING AFTERNOON.

STUDENTS WILL BE IN ATTENDANCE.

Bishop Gailor of Tennessee Will Deliver the Principal Address of the Day.

BERKELEY, Oct. 12.--The Rt. Rev. Thos. F. Gailor, Episcopal Bishop of Tennessee, will speak in Hearst Hall at 3:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, October 13th. Bishop Gailor is known as one of the most eloquent preachers in the Episcopal Church.

Bishop Gailor graduated from Racine College in 1876 and from the General Theological Seminary in 1879. He received the degree of ST. D. from Columbia in 1890, and from the General Theological Seminary in 1893, and the degree of D. D. from Trinity in 1892, and from the University of the South in 1894.

He was ordained priest in 1880, was rector of the Church of the Messiah in Pulaski, Tennessee, from 1879 to 1882; was Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the University of the South from 1882 to 1890, when he was chosen vice chancellor,. In 1893 he was unanimously elected Bishop Coadjutor of Tennessee; and in 1898, on the death of Bishop Quintard, he succeeded to the Bishopric. He is the author, among other works, of "The Apostolical Succession," "The Divine Event of all Time," "Things New and Old," "The Trust of the Episcopate," "The Puritan Reaction," "The Master's Word and the Church's Act."

Bishop Gailor will address the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew at eight o'clock on Saturday evening, October 12th, in Shattuck Hall.

FIREMAN PLACED ON TRIAL.

Acting Chief Declares That He Did Not Obey Orders at a Fire.

ALAMEDA, Oct. 12.—Last night Geo. Morris, foreman of the Thompson Hose Company appeared before the Board of Foremen and Engineers of the Fire Department to answer to charges of disobeying orders and using vulgar and abusive language to his superior officer during the late fire on Park street.

He was represented by J. H. Hansen, while Millington, acting chief of the department, was represented by L. Cordes of the Cordes Hose Company.

Morris requested that more time be granted him in which to secure his witnesses. He claims that the required six days had not been allowed him.

The cause of the trouble dates from the recent fire in the rear of the Leona Hotel, at which time Acting Chief Millington gave Morris some orders which the former claims the latter failed to carry out, and by so doing endangered both life and property.

The case was carried over until next Wednesday, at which time Morris claims he will have witnesses to prove that he did not disobey orders.

WEDDING AT NOON AT WEST BERKELEY.

BERKELEY, Oct. 12.—At high noon today Miss Aline Blackman, one of the most popular young women of the West End, and Benjamin Hamilton, a letter carrier connected with the local Postoffice, were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Ketch of Los Gatos at the residence of the bride's parents.

FIRE DOG DUKE HAS MADE HIS LAST RUN.

Duke, the English setter who has been a favorite with the firemen at the City Hall Engine House for the past eight years, came to a tragic end yesterday, when the department responded to a still alarm from the corner of Eighteenth street and San Pablo avenue. The fire was a false alarm, but Duke, as was his custom, began barking at the head of the fire horses the moment the gong sounded. The engines had not gone thirty feet when Duke was knocked down by the horses and his neck broken by the engine wheels.

It has been a common sight for the last six years to see Duke perched upon the seat of the engine while it was thundering through the streets, barking at the scattering pedestrians, warning them of their danger.

There is grief among the firemen today, for Duke has made his last run with the fire engines.

FRUITVALE CLUB WANTS TO HAVE IMPROVEMENTS

ASKS TO HAVE CULVERTS PUT IN AND WANTS STREETS REPAIRED.

WILL GET NEARLY ALL THAT IS ASKED.

Supervisor Talcott Will Take an Interest in the Requests of the Club.

FRUITVALE, Oct. 12.—The Lower Fruitvale Improvement Club of this place has been stirring things up a little and will succeed in gaining a few of the improvements they have been after.

In the first place, the club has been trying to have the Supervisors place culverts along the line of the railway.

There are gutters extending along either side of the track, and in these gutters the water which comes in during the winter remains the entire year, grows stagnant and breed disease.

With the culverts this water would run out as fast as it could come in. This point the club will no doubt gain, as it has been proven that in the neighborhood cases of contagious disease have been in the majority, which was due to this stagnant water.

The club also wants the streets below Fourteenth street attended to. It claims that nearly all the streets above Fourteenth have been kept in good order, while the ones below have not been fixed.

As a result of their efforts a surveyor has been over the ground within the past few days, and the work of improvement will no doubt begin shortly. The club will hold a meeting next Monday night, when matters of importance will come up. The directors are anxious to have all the members present.

Supervisor Talcott will take an interest in the club's requests.

SAN LEANDRO MAN HAS LEFT TOWN.

CREDITORS ARE ANXIOUS TO FIND HIM TO GET A SETTLEMENT

HAS BEEN SUED FOR A DIVORCE.

His Attorney Says the Creditors May Get a Little Money.

SAN LEANDRO, Oct. 12.—Antone Gomes, who has lately figured as one of the principals in a local scandal, has suddenly disappeared and his creditors are vainly trying to locate him.

It seems that Gomes had borrowed considerable money of late and when the recent trouble occurred in his family he was then contemplating going into bankruptcy.

Gomes was caught in a very embarrassing position by his wife several weeks ago, and the latter has since commenced divorce proceedings against him.

Judge Rawson, in whose hands Gomes had placed his property for settlement, states that he may be able to adjust matters so as to realize between 50 and 75 cents on the dollar, for creditors. He says the assets consist of stock valued at $600, book accounts, $517.10; total assets, $1,117.10; liabilities, $1,423.44.

The principal creditors are Mr. Gomes, $200; Serafino Mello, $350; and J. Menes, $250. The other creditors are wholesale dealers of Oakland and San Francisco.

Legal troubles are apt to come up as it is claimed that Gomes transferred his property to his son three weeks ago and the creditors will no doubt try to have the deed set aside, if such is the case.

A program was rendered which consisted of instrumental music and recitations. Rev. Woodman and Rev. J. A. Anderson made addresses of welcome to which Mr. Walton replied. The church was crowded there being about one hundred people present. After the exercises and speaking, refreshments were served by the ladies of the church.

GENERAL NOTES FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Julia Wickliffe Beckham, mother of Kentucky's governor, enjoys a distinction to which no other woman in the United States can lay claim. She is the daughter, sister and mother of a governor.

Since entering the executive mansion at Frankfort when a child of four years, tragedy and romance have strangely mingled in the life of this interesting woman. Her father, Gov. Charles A. Wickliffe, was born in a log cabin. Having been elected lieutenant governor, he became governor upon the death of Governor Joseph Clark in 1839.

President Tyler in 1841 made the father of Mrs. Beckham postmaster general, in doing so, indirectly made her brother, Robert C. Wickliffe, governor at Louisville. After graduating at Danville young Robert C. Wickliffe, who was the first son of Governor Wickliffe, went to Washington to live with his father and study law.

There he met Miss Annie Dawson, daughter of General John B. Dawson, then congressman from Louisiana, and they were married. Young Wickliffe and his wife went to live in Louisiana with the bride's parents, and there he drifted into politics, became state senator, was made president pro tempore of the senate on the death of the lieutenant governor, and in 1895 he was elected governor of the state.

Back in Kentucky, after having served out his term as postmaster general, Governor Charles A. Wickliffe reestablished himself and his family at their little home in Nelson county, known as Wickland.

In 1855 Miss Julia, who was one of the youngest of the Wickliffe children, married William N. Beckham of Shelby county. They had ten children. John Crepps Wickliffe Beckham was one of them. He attracted the favorable notice of Senator Blackburn, and when 12 years of age was given a place as page in the senate. He was bright and energetic, and the same year in which he was admitted to the bar he was elected to the state legislature. He was again elected and was made speaker of the house.

When Wm. Goebel was nominated at Louisville for governor, J. C. W. Beckham, Mrs. Julia Beckham's son, was named for lieutenant governor, although but 30 years old.

Ruskin says that the path of a good woman is indeed strewn with flowers; but they rise behind her steps, not before them.

THE CHAPERON IN THE OLD SOUTH.

According to H. S. Canfield in the Woman's Home Companion, in many parts of the Old South the chaperon exceeds chaperonage and becomes a personage only one remove from a duenna. Her responsibility weighs upon her like lead. She feels that hers is a high, holy and arduous mission, and she proposes to do her duty rigidly. She is an immovable, indestructible institution. Nothing festive or even mildly social can go on without her. Will you make one of a bicycle party by daylight, a trolley party, a horseback or carriage party, a picnic, a theatre party, an art-gallery party, what not? She is there, calm, impassive, absolute, sometimes stony. She issues no opinions: she delivers dicta.

In society the Southern girl is under the faithful eye of this feminine Cerberus, or she is with her mother or an elderly relative. No tete-a-tete buggy rides for her by moonlight! In many sections no tete-a-tete buggy rides for her in glaring sunlight! No strolls accompanied only by the sighing swain! Strephon sighs like a bellows, but he must do it decorously. If he calls he is not bothered by extraneous persons in the drawing-room; but 10 o'clock is bedtime and his adieux are due. Nor is he supposed to cling desperately to the steps with the soles of his shoes, and explain that parting is such sweet sorrow. He is supposed to go, and he goes. These precautions are not because the girl is supposed to be "unable to take care of herself." She is unaware that an occasion might arise when she would be required to display such ability. They are because it is the purpose of her guardians that she shall not be placed in a position where she would be obliged to "take care of herself."

QUEEN'S CROWN HAS AN EVENTFUL HISTORY.

Queen Wilhelmina's crown has had an eventful history.

It cost about $600,000, and in 1829 was stolen by an enterprising gang of thieves, who managed to retain possession of it for nearly a couple of years.

Finally some of the stones came to light at Brooklyn, whilst the remainder turned up close at home, in Belgium.

At least one European crown is now American. The celebrated railroadmillionaire, the late Jay Gould, purchased the ancient Spanish crown for his daughter, the Countess Castellane. This unlucky symbol of sovereignty was conveyed to America by Prince Drago, grand-nephew of the ex-Queen Isabella, who had carried it with her into exile.

As the result of some little bartering, Gould secured the crown for $125,000. Money will buy most things in this world, not excepting crowns.

SCRAP BOOK IS ONE OF THE LATEST FADS.

The custom of compiling family scrap books is a delightful fad of the day, and one which bids fair to increase in popularity as time advances. Royalty set the example, which others are not slow to follow. King Edward has ordered eight sets of scrap books, each set to contain whatever was printed or spoken of the late Queen at the time of her death. The clippings, gathered in every country and in all tongues, and ranging from the highest illustrated weeklies to the cheapest provincial prints, fill one hundred volumes, although the pages are of full newspaper size. They are pasted upon light gray bristol board and each page hinged before binding. Tre binding is of morocco—half the sets red, half green. There will be gold clasps and corner pieces, and each volume stamped with the royal arms in heavy gilt.

The children of the late Empress Frederick are also having a book made about their royal mother. The clippings are from German, French and English sources. The mount is gray bristol board, the binding dead black morocco with dull gold clasps.

Among prominent New York fashionables it is customary to commence making the scrap books as soon as the stork pays a visit. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gould are busily engaged upon one concerning their new sea born daughter, Edith Catherine Gould.

It begins with the announcement of the little one's birth, printed upon a sheet of heavy cream white paper and mounted in morocco. These announcement cards, which were sent to friends, give categorically the name of both parents and the date and place of birth. Already there are more than twenty big pages filled with news of the young lady and her mother, also pictures of her clothes, her basket, her proud parents and pretty well everything else. The book is of pale blue morocco, with clasps of gold.

What Women are Doing at Home and Abroad.

WON THE PRIZE IN THE COLLEGE SETTLEMENT.

Miss Sayles of Jersey City won the fellowship recently offered by the National College Settlement Association.

Miss Sayles receives $400, in return for which she is expected to carry to completion some needed study of local social and economic conditions.

She is expected to live at some one of the many social settlements in the country, and to conduct the investigation under the direction of the headworker of the Settlement selected and a special committee of the College Settlement Association.

Applications for this prize were received from college women of every section, some of them having already earned the degree of Ph. D., many others having had years of experience in social work. In applying the candidate sent references as to her personal qualifications, the name of the head worker with whom she chose to work, and the topic she wished to exploit. Miss Sayles suggested as the question she thought paramount in all social study the housing of the poor. Tenement houses and their condition in Jersey City had been a special study with her since she came to this city, and out of her knowledge gained by frequent visits and close study she wrote the paper which gained for her this honor.

LONESOMENESS OF LIFE IN A GREAT CITY.

A writer in one of the Philadelphia papers tells the following illustrative of the lonesomeness of life in a great city:

There is in New York a Baptist Deaconesses' Home, which young women enter in order to be relieved from the necessity of wage earning, and thus free to devote their whole time to deeds of charity. Recently the Rev. Mr. Williams, who is in charge of the home, on descending the outer steps, met a man coming up. "Are you looking for any one?" Mr. Williams courteously asked. The man replied with hesitation, "Why—a—yes, I want to see a deaconess." "Which one?" "I don't know," was the peculiar answer; "I'm not quite sure what a deaconess is. But I have lived in New York so many months without a single soul showing any interest in me, and without receiving a kind word from any one. And just now I saw your sign, and I thought if I could see a deaconess, surely she would speak kindly to me!" "But you must be in need of some kind. "Can't I give you some practical help?" Mr. Williams asked. The pathetic answer was: "No; I need nothing. I did not come in to beg. I am hungering for the sound of a kind voice. I want some one to speak kindly to me!" The case of this man turned out as represented, and is but one of many. In another instance a deaconess, entering into colloquy with a resident in a tenement house, was appealed to in the same manner, the woman saying that she and her husband were so heartsick from loneliness amid the multitude that they had resolved on committing suicide together.

Thirteen years ago the lady in charge of the South End Industrial School, in Boston, while visiting the homes of the children who came to the school, found several families where there were no girls to help the mother in her work; and in one home a father and his three boys were striving to keep house as the dead mother had done.

She decided that boys needed lessons in cooking quite as much as girls; so a class of these rough youngsters were gathered one evening in the school kitchen for a trial lesson, which proved a success.

Caps and aprons like those of "real men cooks" were provided, and the boys, feeling the force of their uniform, soon settled into their new work.

The dishes to be cooked were chosen with especial thought for the taste and appetite of a boy, fish chowder being the savory subject of the first lesson.

The next year two classes of boys from the public schools received lessons at other cooking schools in the city, the good work being much increased this season.

The boys take to the work easily and often with more interest than their sisters. The masculine instinct for good food is strong. Every boy seems to have some object in view. One says: "A fellow who comes here for lessons can get a first-rate job on a ship some day."

Another looks forward to life "on a ranch." Others mean "to camp out," or "to cook when mother is sick." The teachers strive to impress all pupils with the principles of honest work; neatness and faithfulness being required in the smallest matters.

A little knowledge of this kind helps boys to be better sons and brothers now, and better husbands and fathers in the future.

Knowing how to make foods savory saves many a person from drunkenness.—Anna Barrows, editor American Kitchen Magazine.

"No, I never have a bit of trouble with my husband, "remarked the frail little woman with the intelligent face. "In fact, I have him right under my thumb."

"You don't look very strong," doubtfully commented the engaged girl.

"You mistake me, my dear. It's a mental, not a physical subjection."

"Would you mind telling me how—"

"Not a bit. Always glad to help any one steer clear of the rocks. First of all, you must know that a man in love is the biggest sort of a fool, and says things that make him almost wild when he hears 'em in after life. I realized it, and from the very beginning of our courtship I kept a phonograph in the room, and every speech he made was duly recorded. Now, whenever my husband gets a little bit obstreperous I just turn on a record or so. Heavens, how he does rave! but he can't deny it. They always will though, if you don't have proof positive."

"Thank you," gracefully murmured the engaged girl. "I'll get a phonograph this very day."—London Tit-Bits.

WOMEN AS DRUMMERS SAID TO BE A SUCCESS.

A member of a New Orleans wholesale firm, which has several women out on the road, is quoted as authority that "women make better drummers in som erespects. The fact is that when it comes to certain lines the women who have an aptitude can do much more than men. Time was, and it was only a few years ago, when it was generally believed that a woman could not sell anything on the road except books and certain articles of wearing apparel peculiar to her sex. The operations of the female drummer were for a long time confined to a very limited field. But in recent years she has branched out somewhat and I simply state an open secret when I say that she may be regarded as a success on the road. In some instances she has proven herself a more valuable member than the men. Take certain lines, like tea, coffee, spices, and things of that sort, and in a majority of instances she will place more goods than a man will in the same length of time. This is probably true of these articles because she can talk more intelligently about them. They are used in every home, and the average business woman that one finds out in the world manages to keep up with the things needed by the housewife, and hence the woman drummer can make a fairly good talk about things of this kind. The woman drummer has come to stay, and, if the men are not careful of their laurels, she will divide them equally at least, if she does not get the bigger half."

BOILING CHOPS.

When pan broiling chops always stand them for a minute on their ends, that the fat edge may be cooked and brown instead of remaining pale and unsightly.

When cooking a small roast first sear it all over on a hot spider. This will immediately drive in the meat juices and less heat will be required in the oven.

In hot weather use no vegetables in soup stock; it will keep better. All the vegetables in making the soup.

In making gelatine dessert on a hot or a wet day, add a little more gelatine than the recipe requires, half as much again if you wish to mold fruit into the jelly.

An ordinary sized box of pulverized gelatine holds five tablespoonfuls.

A touch piece of meat can be very nicely stewed in a double boiler. It will take twice as long, however, as if cooked directly over the fire.

Small individual bean pots are used in many families in preference to those of a larger size. The principal thing in their favor outside of their acknowledged "cuteness" is the fact that less time is required in baking the beans when placed in the smalled receptacles.

TO JUDGE THE AGE OF EGGS.

As eggs grow old their density decreases through evaporation of moisture.

A new laid egg placed in a vessel of brine made in the proportion of two ounces of salt to one pint of water will at once sink to the bottom. An egg one day old will sink below the surface, but not to the bottom, while three days old will swim just immersed in the liquid. If more than three days old, the egg will float on the surface, the amount of shell exposed being increased with age. If two weeks old only a little of the shell will dip in the liquid.

Mint Butter—Chop two dozen tender mint leaves into small shreds. Dip the little patties of butter into lemon juice, roll them in the mint leaves, and with the wet butter paddle work the butter into small marbles. Let them stand half an hour on the ice until thoroughly impregnated with the lemon and mint flavor. Then place three butter balls on each hot salted and peppered broiled chop, and serve.

ROOSEVELT'S CHILDREN.

President Roosevelt has six children, the eldest a young lady, Miss Alice, aged 17, and the youngest, Quentin, aged 4. Between these two are Theodore, Jr., aged 14; Kermit, age 12; Ethel, age 10, and Archibald, age 7. This is the largest family that has ever occupied the White House. What the life of these six children will be in the White House is as yet only a matter of conjecture, but they are thoroughgoing American boys and girls, fond of all outdoor sports like their father, and enter whole-souledly into everything which attracts their attention. The boys are athletic and are described as chips off the old block. They are ready to hunt, to box, or to fight. The President is fond of his children and enters heartily into their exercises, games, and amusements. But when he romps with his children he shuts out the official world, and when he takes up official duties he shuts out the children. The home life of the White House promises to be an interesting and very happy one during the Roosevelt administration.

WOMEN'S CLUBS IN MANY STATES

The Boston Daughters of New Hampshire, numbering four hundred and twenty-five members, has withdrawn from the General Federation of Women's Clubs on account of the per capita tax, and also on account of the recent decision of the board at the Milwaukee Convention in regard to the color question. Commenting upon this course of action the Woman's Journal of Boston protests against withdrawal, saying it will delay indefinitely a just solution of the color question.

THE BUTTERCUPS OF CITY OF NEW YORK.

New York has a new society, composed of ladies, who call themselves Buttercups. Whether the name is significant or not, is unknown, but the aim of the society is a laudable one, no less a thing than the cultivation and dissemination of charity and good will. No member is to say an unkind word or to form a harsh judgment.

Every member is to take whatever comes with cheerful serenity and make the best of the situation. Each woman is pledged to spread abroad the club principles. If any one in the fold is heard to utter an expression unbefitting the sisterhood her fellows are to say "Buttercups." The magic words will bring the wandering one back to a sense of her responsibility.

The Fruit and Flower league which was formed in Alabama three years ago, limited, at first, its membership to forty. Its work is unique, and consists in the study and dissemination of certain ideas concerning the human diet. It has been referred to as a vegetarian society, and it has taken for its patron St. Francis Assisi, the great vegetarian, but a proof that it has no prejudice in the matter is the fact meat eaters are admitted to full membership. Recently its club list has been increased to 300, that number being quickly filled by persons being desirous to join the league. The organization has undertaken the practical work of founding a training school of food for the use of physicians and nurses, in which may be demonstrated the possibilities of diet. The association believes that many of the evils of the time can be reached through a betterment of diet.

The Colored Women's Business Club of Chicago numbers among its members eight stenographers, four milliners, one lawyer and three physicians.

SERVANT GIRLS' CLUB WITH A COOK AS MANAGER.

In Milwaukee, Wisconsin, there is a servant girls' club, with a retired cook as manager and originator as well. When out of a place the girls can board at the club house rooms cheaper than elsewhere, and can also store their trunks, if they wish to. An initiation fee of fifty cents insures a girl a place, and while she is getting it she is entitled to all the privileges of the club. If one place is not satisfactory she can go back to the club and try for another. To continue her membership in the club a fee of twenty-five cents per week is exacted, and for this the club furnishes her a number of privileges. As the organization has grown different classes have been started for the benefit of the members; including cheap dressmaking, together with classes for reading and arithmetic. None of these classes is free, the fees being very small, however, only enough to pay the teachers. The success of the enterprise seems to be in the fact that it is conducted by one who has been herself in domestic service, and knows the special needs and economies of her class. The membership is large and growing. The spirit of the club is evidently helpful, not only to the members, but as well to the community at large, as only women of good character are admitted to its privileges.

STORY OF THE ARTIST AND THE LADY.

The following story of Morelli is taken from the Pall Mall Gazette:

An authoress of note was in Naples and very much desired to know Morelli but could find no one to act as intermediary. So at last she took her courage in her hands and resolved to introduce herself, but not without qualms. As she approached she found the studio door open, one more cause for embarrassment, and, pushing a curtain to one side, stood before the artist at work, who, looking at her absent-mindedly, said: "These lines seem to be all right. What do you say?" and to her murmured response went on, "but the eyes of the nuns do not suit me; pray sit down a moment; yours are just the thing." With inward delight the lady sat down and acted as model for an hour and a half, during which writer and artist talked as though they had been friends all their lives. At a certain point Morelli stopped abruptly, took off his glasses, peered at his handsome model, and said, "But excuse me, who are you?"

COUNTRY GIRLS GO TO CITY FOR A FORTUNE.

The Buffalo Evening News says that every autumn hundreds of country girls leave their homes and go to the city to try their fortunes. Those with college educations, fitted for teaching or trained for some special line of work may fall into pleasant ways, but the unhappy majority serving in shops and factories, standing behind counters eight hours of the twenty-four, do not have an enjoyable life by any means. Suppose that they had remained at home in the quiet village where they thought there was nothing to do, and had taken up dressmaking as a trade, worked the garden, raised flowers, or studied bee culture, and had gone in the society of the town where each one stands on his own merits, and the lines of caste are not so closely drawn as in a city; would they not have been better off after all?

The country may lack the feverish glare and excitement of the city, but its pleasures are more wholesome and of a more enduring kind. The country girl earning her way in a village has more liberty than the saleswoman of the city store earning $10 a week. The country girl gets her holiday whenever she wants it. She is not obliged to pay $2 a week for car fare and luncheons or spend all her hours in noisy streets, where the din of passing traffic makes it necessary to shout in order that she may be heard. She does not live in a cheap boarding house, but sits at a generous table spread with a bountiful country are, and when she passes down the street friends greet her on every side. Yes, the country-bred girl gets a bad bargain when she leaves home for the city.

FASHIONS FOR THE WOMEN.

A lovely imported evening wrap is of rich dark green velvet, lined with palest pink satin, and cut in Empire style. The broad collar is of two bands, each edged with ermine, the lower band falling over the shoulder. The striking feature of the garment is the sleeve, which is loose, and slashed all the way up the back. At a point just above the elbow a filling of handsome lace is inserted and allowed to close the sleeve to the hand, where it terminates in a deep flounce. A row of buttons and a tiny silk cord loops draw the sleeve together as desired.

One of the newest trimmings for the modish automobile tie is the decoration of heavy braid, in striking black and white effects. Another odd fancy is an edging of little metal cord or quaint patterns worked out in this material on the ends of the tie. Tiny buttons of metal or pearl on the collar part are equally in favor.

NEW HATS ARE NOW LOADED WITH FEATHERS.

Members of Audubon societies will have plenty of work on their hands this season, for the new hats are simply loaded with feathers of every description. Aigrettes are not quite so popular as they were before such vigorous protests were entered against the fashion of using them, but ostrich feathers are to the fore in a way simply unheard of last year. The long plumes are much in evidence, black and white predominating. Bird's wings, quills, plumage and pon pons are also in high favor.

White felt, always becoming, is to be worn this season, which means a decided novelty in hats, since this has not been seen in some years. A fetching white felt tricorne trimmed with black satin and great black ostrich plumes is one of the most youthful looking hats of the season. The satin fodls softly about the crown and is caught with a large buckle in front, terminating in a bow in the back. The plumes spring from each side of the back and curl prettily over the rolling upturned sides of the brim.

The velvet ribbon craze grows more and more contagious, if that is possible. Parisian lace gowns show bows and loops in all sorts of fanciful arrangements, and, in fact, wherever delicate colors are used there may be found the inevitable velvet, in either black or colors. Lacings of it across the front of a waist are also popular. Bows and streamers appear on ties, and knots of velvet ribbon on hats.

The straight-front corset, which dissimulates the bust and ignores the waist-line, is a revival of the stiffly boned affairs worn by the women of the Louis XV. era. Thus it is evident that the modes of the present day are by no means original, and are evolutions rather than creations. However, they are rarely reproduced in their entirety, and are twisted and turned with such ingenuity that but little remains of their individuality. It is the survival of the fittest, and an old mode must be launched with concessions to the more orthodox ideas of the present century. The dressmaker takes what suits him best from each era, so that one sees a Directory gown with a Marie Stuart sleeve, a Marie Antoinette petticoat and a Roman belt, a Marie Amelie hat and an Elizabethan ruff, etc.

Some Points in the Latest Styles.

In the nice ear of Nature, which song is the best?"—Lowell.

MANY WAYS OF MAKING BED LINEN.

There are many ways of making bed-linen, from elaborate monograms and the full initials to the plainest letter or the name written in indelible ink.

A simple way is to baste a piece of fine white canvas on sheet or pillow-case just above the hem and work the initials in some of the old-fashioned "sampler" stitches. The canvas must be pulled out after working, and if moderately heavy cotton is used this working will give nearly the effect of the more tedious embroidery.

"There is more or less sorrow in the words 'good-bye,' and yet how we like to hear some people say it."

A FEW LINES ABOUT THE AUTOMOBILE COAT.

Oh, Automobile Coat;
Not that that man wears
On his fiery, untamed steed
Which chews up oil and steam
And busts a britchen strap
At intervals.
But that woman wears
When she doth promenade
The thronging thoroughfares,
Or crowds the bargain counter
To the wall;
Oh, Automobile Coat,
Who first suggested you
As garniture
For shapes divinely tall
And most divinely fair,
Or dumpy as the duck's?
What hypnotist of Fashion
Patterned you,
And worked his spell
On womankind
That she should make
A clotheshorse of herself
To be so blanketed?
Was he a minion
Of the shapeless ones
Who sought to hide beneath your folds?
Or friend of those Whose clothes were old,
Or out of style?
And was his price
Less than the price
Of plumpers and of pads,
Or of the new things
Woman so admires?
God wot.
This much we know,
That woman looks a sight
In your encircling widths;
A lumpy, lumbering thing
That wabbles when it walks;
A buttoned bag
Of gracelessness;
A figure in a freakish garb
That fits a barrel
With the grace
That it would fit a barber pole.
That woman does peculiar things,
And those we least expect
Is woman's way:
Is woman's pride;
But not so with her looks.
To look all right and regular
Is what she most desires.
She'd risk her hope of Heaven
For a whim
Of head or heart.
And give it little heed:
But if her hat
Be not on straight,
Her very soul cries out in pain.
And you.
Oh, Automobile Coat,
Are worse than if she wore
Two hats,
And both were on crooked.
Oh, Automobile Coat, go to;
You cause us special wonder
That woman wears you, when you know
You make her look like thunder.
Avaunt; vamoose, you shapeless thing
That casts your spell on woman;
Get out of sight, and once more let
Her look like something human.

The Great Social Change in the Nation's Last Half Century.

AMERICAN LIFE CONDITIONS.

Progress as it Is Marked by Improvement in the Lot of the Common Man.

(From Oakland Saturday Night.)

In the midst of so much that is hysterical in the discussion of recent events, one hails with gladness a calm, common sense analysis. "The North American," published in Philadelphia, issues the following editorial—so fair and just, that it deserves to be extensively quoted, carrying as it does, food for thought to the average citizen:

"In the general drawing of lessons by the pulpit and press from the assassination of President McKinley there is to be observed a tendency to regard the murderer as a product of evil conditions in our national life. This is an error. Czolgosz is not an American product, or even an American symptom. In so far as the creature was influenced by the thought of others, it was by foreign thought. Though he was born among us, he was impervious to the characteristic mental environment of his native land and lived in a world of ideas as remote from the present American ways of thinking as Michigan is geographically remote from Moscow.

"As an anarchist of the red variety therefore Czolgosz is clearly an exotic. Only confusion of thought can cause one to consider him indigenous to the United States. Anarchy flourishes where absolutism in government exists—where the throne, the nobility, the standing army represent and uphold privilege; where there is neither free speech, a free press nor popular participation in government. Anarchists being associated in our minds with tyranny and repression, the appearance of Czolgosz leads many to assume that as we have in him the fruit, the tree bearing it has taken root among us. Really he is a poisonous thing borne on the tides of free modern communicatin from the Old World and cast upon our coast.

"But though Czolgosz is not a product of present American conditions of life, nor a seasonable symptom of American social evils, he may nevertheless be accepted as an anticipation—an anticipation of what our product will be if we shall become like the countries which produce Anarchists.

"It did not need Czolgosz and his crime to furnish us with warning thinkers who tell us that the chief service of the American Republic to mankind has been to demonstrate that political liberty does not solve the social problem—that the fullest political freedom is entirely compatible with the most glaring inequality of opportunity and fortune; that men may have votes and governors of their own choosing, and yet in the mass bear the same social relation to the great and powerful as the mass of men do under despotic rule. Our multi-millionaires are in essence the same beings as the titled nobles of older systems.

"Every American who has passed middle life, or who has acquainted himself by reading with his country's past, knows that within the last half century a great social change has taken place in the United States—that along with the upcoming of a wealthy class there has been a corresponding separation of the people by caste line. And as we have evolved a moneyed aristocracy there has been a progressive deterioration in our standards of public life, particularly exemplified in the deepening corruption of State Legislatures and municipal governments.

"This corruption does not come from below, but from above. The sort of government we suffer under in Pennsylvania, for illustration, is not imposed on us by the gutter, but by wealth privilege-enjoying and privilege-seeking wealth. 'The reason why so many rich men prefer rotten government to equal and honest government,' a millionaire United States Senator explained to the writer, 'is that predatory wealth can manage in its own interest the Pennsylvania kind of government, whereas it would have no special privileges under a government that gave everybody just a square deal and no more.'

"The future peril to the public is not to be apprehended from the ballot-armed mob voting in its own interests and against the interests and rights of property, as the old-fashioned European prophets of evil supposed, but from the narrow and anti-social selfishness of those who are accustomed to regard themselves as the better classes—the kind of men thus described by President Roosevelt:

" 'Hard, brutal indifference to the right, and an equally brutal shortsightedness as to the inevitable results of corruption and injustice, are baleful beyond measure; yet they are characteristic of a great many Americans who thinwk themselves perfectly respectable, and who are considered thriving, prosperous men by their easy-going fellow-citizens.'

"By such men any protest against class injustice is angrily denounced as a wicked appeal to class prejudice, and any proposal for a juster distribution of wealth by reducing the power of monopoly is shouted down as 'Socialism' and 'Anarchy.' To their hard and small and self-satisfied minds a suggestion that their privileges be curtailed for the common good is the same thing as an attack on the foundations of Christian civilization itself.

"This spirit is utterly un-Christian, un-American, and to the last degree dangerous, since it refuses a hearing to discontent, and holds in practice that the only proper replies to the complaints of poverty are, first, scornful indifference, and, next, the policeman and the soldier. So persuaded are large numbers of 'perfectly respectable, thriving, prosperous men' that the world which they find good enough as it is for them ought to be good enough to satisfy everybody else, that contemptuous impatience habitually marks their attitide toward the masses whenever the masses stir with he idea that those who do the world's work should have a larger share of what the world's work creates.

"Yet nothing is plainer than that progress in civilization has no surer index than improvement in the lot of the common man. It ought to be obvious to everybody that in this republic of free schools, a free press, and manhood suffrage, whose people have been nurtured on the democratic principles of the Declaration of Independence, men will think. And men who think, and who have received the education of freemen, cannot be made to feel that an industrial system which yields the sweat-shop and the trust, the palace and the tenement—riches greater than the world ever saw before for some, and poverty as horrible as the world ever saw before for many—is in harmony with Christianity."

The ulcer of poverty eats into the young body of the American Republic as well as into the body of the oldest monarchy of the Old World. Why?

Readiness to listen with respect and sympathy to men of intellect and heart true answer to which the persistence of this republic, of our civilization itself depends—will do more to prevent the breeding of Anarchy among us than all laws for excluding immigrants and for limiting the freedom of speech and of the press. If poverty be accepted as an inescapable curse, and monopoly of nature's resources and the means of distribution be surrendered in perpetuity to the trusts; if we are content to see wealth accumulate and men decay, and to view the multi-millionaire and the tramp as incurable phenomena, inevitable as the recurrence of the seasons over which man has no control—and concurrently with this acceptance of the hopeless doctrine of laissez faire there shall be a resort to Russian methods of dealing with discontent—then as certainly as that injustice and tyranny are the parents of conspiracies and political murder, shall we produce whole broods of potential Czolgoszes.

The best preventive of Anarchy in the United States is freedom and justice; the surest way of domesticating what is now a foreign plague, represented by the essentially foreign Czolgosz is to allow the reproduction here of the industrial and social conditions of Europe.

The Rev. Peter MacQueen records in Frank Leslie's Monthly, a frank criticism by Count Tolstoi, of England and America:

Speaking of Lao Tse called up the Chinese question. On that Tolstoi said: "Everything the Americans did in China was wise and considerate and beneficent. Aguinaldo has been misrepresented to the Americans, but in China their policy was above reproach. But the war fever in America was not so deep as in England. A deeply-educated Russian doctor has apparently proved to me that England's theory in the Transvaal was right. It is hard to judge. I sympathize with the Boers because they are weak, and are fighting for their homes. What do you think will be the end in South Africa."

I said I thought England would lose all South Africa. "I am glad to hear you say that," he said. "A brilliant Englishman has just written me the same opinion. I have no data to base a judgment upon, but I have an instinctive feeling that England has reached the zenith, and is on the downward way. She will last a long time, but she is past her height. After producing Thomas Carlyle and John Ruskin it seems inexplicable that the great English nation in the vanguard of liberty, a beacon to all the world for freedom, should idolize such men as Chamberlain and Rhodes. That is the sad, bad side. It is war madness among the common people. That has no cure. It illustrates the Roman proverb: 'Whom Jupiter would destroy he first makes mad.'"

"What about your own people in America?" asked the Sclavic philosopher. I said our army was very small, having had actually only 17,000 men when we began the war with Spain.

"But it is much larger now, is it not? It seems to me it grew very quickly. Only a short time ago I read it was less than 5,000 now it is 100,000 or more." I told him 100,000 as the maximum; that the minimum was much less. "But you build great battleships—the best in any nation." I agreed to this. "It is a pity you think you need any battleships. After the Pleiad of writers America produced in the Civil War you can now only show as your most brilliant brain, Carnegie, the millionaire. You had Thoreau, Ballou, Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier and Waldoiw son, Longfellow, Whittier and Walt Whitman. It was your Hemeric age. Then rose the Achilles among statesmen, Abraham Lincoln. All these were a giant constellation. Your war fever is over but gold has you now."

"Mark Hanna in 1904," the Neighbors Cry.

Cleveland, O.—Mark Hanna's neighbors have taken up his Presidential boom. A number of the Republicans of the Forty-first Ward, in which Senator Hanna lives, met Friday night to organize a club. Among those present was Councilman Edmund Hitchens, one of the party leaders in that section of the city. He made a speech, in which he urged the advisability of forming an organization for the purpose of helping the Senator's boom along.

A resolution was adopted declaring it to be the object of the members to further in all honorable ways the candidacy of Senator Hanna for the Presidency, believing that he is the logical candidate for the office.

Robert W. Irvine, the president of the club, says that the members of the organization mean business.

"Senator Hanna is the logical candidate for the Presidency," he said. "We, his friends and neighbors, believing that, will do our utmost to bring about his nomination. What better place to start a Presidential boom for him than in his own ward, where he is known and honored?"

The club will meet weekly, and no opportunity will be neglected to advance the Senator's candidacy.—New York World.

Mr. Schwab's Home Church Completed

Johnstown, Pa.—Lorette, this county, on Tuesday, was the scene of a most impressive and notable gathering in connection with the church built by President Charles M. Schwab of the United States Steel corporation, to commemorate the life and services of Prince Dometrius Gallitzin, the pioneer priest and patriarch of the Catholic Church in all the Alleghany region. The occasion of the gathering at the native place of Mr. Schwab was the formal turning over to the congregation of St. Michael's Church, in that hamlet, of the church built at Mr. Schwab's expense.

Among those present and participating in the ceremonies were Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, and Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia.

Mr. Schwab, after the opening exercises, made an address, turning over to the congregation the church property. Archbishop Ireland replied to Mr. Schwab, accepting the gift in behalf of the congregation.—Indianapolis News.

About People Who Write.

ADA CAMBRIDGE HAS JUST COMPLETED A CLEVER BOOK — SOME INTERESTING PERIODICALS ISSUED IN THE EAST—LITERARY NOTES.

Ada Cambridge has given us another book. It is styled "The Devastators," and like some of those which have preceded it, its scene is laid in Europe. The opening chapter introduces to the reader a plain young woman from Australia who is visiting a garrulous and crotchety maiden aunt in England. The aunt is full of prejudices. The niece is disposed to be calm and considerate, and is just brimming with goodness. She is especially kind and gentle to dumb brutes and goes into raptures over those who have a warm place for them in their hearts. Though gifted with a tender and compassionate nature, she is barren of beauty of face, and yet her features have an attractiveness which seems to fascinate everybody who comes within the reach of her influence. Her face is technically incorrect in every feature, with hair to match, of a reddish tint, before red hair became fashionable. This creature of inconsistencies in appearance, early falls in love with Dr. Dallas, of whom her aunt has spoken in a most disparaging manner. The reader is led to believe that the romance will end with the marriage of the two, but that is not the case. They do not fullfil the promise of their first interview. What they might have done if left alone, it is impossible to say, but the wind of destiny sweeps away the seeds which were germinating in their hearts. The heroine goes along smiting one heart after another, and finally meets a congenial spirit whom she weds, and finally, is suddenly taken ill, not, however, until after her daughter has grown into a promising girl having, in a pronounced degree, the indescribable charms of her mother which exercised a witchery over the hearts of her gentlemen friends. The death of the heroine is tenderly depicted and there is a touch of pathos in the ending of the young life which is somewhat relieved by the fascination of the daughter, which is very happily described.

The story is quiet and gentle in its style, being a succession of pictures among cultured people where goodness of heart is the prevailing characteristic. It is written in Miss Cambridge's easiest and most graceful style, and can be read with interest by a discriminating public. It is published by D. Appleton & Co., New York City, and retails for 50 cents.

THE OUTER PARALLEL.

"The Outer Parallel" is the story in verse of Nathaniel Greene, Major-General in the army of the American Revolution. It is written by Peter Strieletsi, who has also written the plays "West Point" and the "Tragical History of Aaron Burr." The author is evidently a great admirer of Greene, who was one of the earliest of the American leaders and who first defeated Cornwallis before the British was finally subdued by the Commander-in-chief. The metrical story is interspersed with lofty allegorical flights, which are supposed to exalt the purpose of the narrative. The career of the general is gone into in detail, so much so that it seems to be a succinct history of the early life and public services of the hero. People who like to read history in metrical lines will find their taste satisfied in Mr. Strieletsi's effort. The book is published by the Saalfield Publishing Co., Akron, Ohio.

TABLE TALK.

"Table Talk" for October is bright and interesting as usual. It is impossible for any person to read this publication without receiving most valuable information on the serving of choice viands and fine dinners. It is published in Philadelphia.

SUCCESSFUL AMERICAN.

"The Successful American" for October is a memorial number. It is devoted to biographical sketches of President Roosevelt and the others in exalted positions in the government. The number is profusely illustrated. It is published in New York City.

MODERN CULTURE.

"Modern Culture" for the current month is particularly interesting. It contains some very fine pictures and a number of interesting sketches by celebrated writers. A sketch on the "Fall of the Alamo" will be found refreshingly new. The magazine is published in Cleveland, Ohio.

THE INDEPENDENT.

"The Independent" for this month has as its chief article, "American Rule in the Sulus," which is written by Lieutenant-Colonel Owen J. Sweet, U. S. A. There are facts in this sketch which have never appeared in print before. The magazine is published in New York City.

LIVING AGE.

The "Living Age" has for its leading article this week, a selection from the Quarterly Review entitled "Society Croakers." The title is self-explanatory. The article is well written. It will be very greatly appreciated. The "Age" is published in Boston, Mass.

EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE.

The current number of "Everybody's Magazine" contains, among other good things, a continuation of General Funston's account of his capture of the rebel leader, Aguinaldo. The narrative is graphically written and will be appreciated as a contribution to the history of the war.

THE WORLD'S WORK.

"The World's Work" has, in some respects, found a field for itself. It is devoted to literature and at the same time comprehends what is going on in the world of science and progress. The present number is rich in every department. It is published at 34 Union Square East, New York City.

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

"Harper's Weekly" contains the closing scenes in the obsequies of the late President McKinley, and then devotes some space to depicting the races between the Shamrock and the Columbia. It is published in Franklin Square, New York City.

CRITIC.

The leading article in "The Critic" for October is entitled "The Tauchnitz Edition," which carries a fine picture of Baron Tauchnitz, and is also well illustrated.

"The Lounger" presents interesting notes of gossip of the leading writers of the day. There are also some interesting letters of Mrs. Carlyle to her housemaid, which presents some pleasing sketches of the household life of Thomas Carlyle and of Jane Welch Carlyle.

ATLANTIC.

The October number of the "Atlantic Monthly" carries a most interesting installment of Mary Johnston's new story "Audrey." A leading article deals with municipal affairs, of which it presents interesting phases in "The Piracy of Public Franchises." "Yale's Fourth Jubilee" is a splendid tribute to one of the leading colleges of the nation.

"The Contributor's Club" keeps up its high standard in the discussion of current events.

EVENING POST.

"The Saturday Evening Post" has an article by ex-President Cleveland on "The Safety of the President." The article is a discussion of the causes which led up to the killing of McKinley and the best means of preventing the assassination of public officials. The subject will be read with all the more interest because it is the work of a man who was himself in danger of the bullets of the assassin. "The Post" is published in Philadelphia.

DIGEST.

"The Topics of the Day" department of "The Literary Digest" for this week contains, among other things, a resume of the discussion as regards the extermination of anarchy in this country. Other interesting features are numerous. "The Digest" is published in New York City.

UNIQUE.

"The Unique Monthly," which sells for five cents a copy, has a varied table of contents, and in it appears a very interesting article which is illustrated, on "Girl Life in Japan." It is published in New York City.

SUNSET.

"Sunset" is a creditable exposition of the beauty of the climate of the Pacific Coast, its resources and the places in which pleasant outings may be enjoyed. It is published by the Passenger Department of the Southern Pacific Company at San Francisco.

ENGINEERING MAGAZINE.

"The Engineering Magazine" is a review of the progress made in engineering up to the present time. It is contributed to by skilled writers and cannot well be spared from the library of students who would keep abreast of the times. It is published at 120 Liberty street, New York City.

LEDGER MONTHLY.

"The Ledger Monthly" as a repository of polite literature, interesting sketches, timely subjects and fashions for women, is a very welcome visitor this month. It is published in New York City.

MAIZE.

Upon a hundred thousand plains
Its banners rustle in the breeze,
O'er all the nation's wide domains
From coast to coast betwixt the seas.

It storms the hills and fills the vales,
It marches like an army grand,
The continent its presence hails,
Its beauty brightens all the land.

Far back through history's shadowy page
It shines, a power of boundless good,
The people's prop from age to age,
The one unfailing wealth of food.

God's gift to the New World's great need
That helped to build the nation's strength,
Up through beginnings rude to lead
A higher race of men at length.

How straight and tall and stately stand
Its serried stalks upright and strong!
How nobly are its outlines planned,
What grace and charm to it belong!

What splendor in its rustling leaves!
What richness in its close-set gold!
What largess in its clustered sheaves,
New every year, though ages old!

America, from thy broad breast
It sprang, beneficent and bright,
Of all thy gifts from heaven the best,
For the world's succor and delight.

Then do it honor, give it praise!
A noble emblem should be ours;
Upon thy fair shield set thy Maize,
More glorious than a myriad flowers.

And let thy States their garland bring,
Each its own lovely blossom-sign,
But leading all let Maize be king,
Holding its place by right divine.

—Celia Thaxter.

Good One on Senator Jones.

A good story comes from Washington. Senator Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is a member of the Humane Society and wears a badge that entitles him to investigate the condition of any animal that appears to be ill-treated. A day or two ago, as he came down from the capitol, he inspected a team standing by the curb. "Here you!" shouted the driver, "what are you doing there feeling about that horse's neck?" "I am an officer of the Humane Society," replied Senator Jones mildly, "and I want to see if this collar fits this horse." "Well," snarled the driver, "if that collar don't fit that horse better than your collar fits you, you just run along and get a cop and have me arrested." Senator Jones passed on.

With the Players in Two Cities

"MRS. BRIDGET O'BRIEN, ESQ." WILL BE PLAYED AT THE DEWEY.

Clever Bills Are Announced Across the Bay For Next Week.

Next week at the Dewey Theater, there will be a revival of the old, old laugh-promoting play "Bridget O'Brien Esq."

There is no use of telling anything about this play because it is known to theater goers for more than thirty years. In fact, it was the original of the farce comedies in three acts. It has had a thousand imitators. At the same time, it still holds the favor of the public. The title role, "Mrs. O'Brien" will be assumed by Harry Conners who will be supported by the full strength of the Dewey Stock Company.

The seats for this play are already in demand and there is no doubt that there will be crowded houses during the week beginning next Monday night.

ROYAL ITALIAN BAND.

The date for the opening of the Royal Italian Band series of concerts is at hand and Monday night, San Francisco music lovers will have the opportunity of regaling themselves with music such as they have seldom heard before. The engagement will consist of thirteen concerts, which will be given at the Alhambra under the direction of Messrs. Ellinghouse and Oppenheimer, proprietors and managers of the California Theater. There will be eight evening concerts and matinees on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Friday night will will be a special "Creatore Night" while for the closing concert on Sunday night, the 20th, a program of popular music will be rendered.

The Royal Italian Band has been the musical sensation in the East during the past season and the progress of its present tour to the Coast has been marked by continual ovation. Under the energetic directorship of Giuseppe Creatore the band has made marvelous headway since it was last here. Creatore himself is pronounced by Eastern critics to be the greatest musical genius that America has ever seen. In comparing Sousa and Creatore as leaders, the Philadelphia Enquirer said: "Creatore has Sousa beaten to death with his own baton." This is pretty strong praise coming from so conservative an authority.

CALIFORNIA.

Broadhurst's latest farce-comedy success "Rudolph and Adolph" comes to the California Monday night for a week of hilarity. This comedy is one of pronounced hits of the season and has been doing an enormous business everywhere. It serves to introduce two famous German comedians, Dan and Charles Mason, in stellar roles. Dan Mason is already well and favorably known to San Francisco theater-goers. It was he who created the ludicrous German professor "Von Bulow Schmidt" in "The Man from Mexico," also "Count Wilhelm von Guggenheim" in "Why Smith Left Home," the German servant in "Mr. Smooth" and more recently the stocking importer in "Naughty Anthony." In addition to the two stars, the company contains such known favorites as Lottie Williams, the Lawrence sisters, Gloria Maskel, Lew H. Newcomb, C. Jay Williams, the Lawrence sister, Gloria Alonzo, Estelle Gilbert, William O'Day and Samuel Mirfield.

"Rudolph and Adolph" is a comedy of errors and the perplexities of the leading characters, "Rudolph," a horse doctor, and "Adolph," a ladies' tailor are extremely ludicrous. Both look alike, talk alike, and their mannerisms are similar. Both happen while their wives are away, to rent flats in the same apartment-house in New York. Their quarters are opposite, upon the same floor and when "Adolph's" wife returns she goes into "Rudolph's" apartment by mistake. She fondles "Rudolph" who is not averse to such treatment but in a little while his wife appears and then the racket begins in earnest. The strange likeness of the men and the similarity of names confuse everybody and in the three acts there is fun enough for two shows.

The California's following attraction will be another comedy success, "A Female Drummer" in which Johnstone Bennett is starring the season.

THE TIVOLI.

The Tivoli dual bill of "Masked Ball" and "Nabucco" fills the house nightly, both operas being well rendered with most capable casts. "Masked Ball" is the opera for tonight and "Nabucco" for the last time Sunday evening.

On Monday next, October 14, the Tivoli will have a Verdi night, in commemoration of the birth of the celebrated composer. The program will be a fine one, the evening being made up of acts and scenes from his most popular works. It will include Act III. of "Alda," act IV. of "Rigoletto," the great duet from "Otello," act IV. from "Il Trovatore," which contains the "Miserere," the overture from "Nabucco," and the celebrated trio from "Lomabrdi."

Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights the house puts on the two famous hits, "Cavalleria" and "I Pagliacci," which operas drew tremendous houses a couple of weeks ago, and which were re-demanded by many. The casts will be nearly the same as before. Agostini will be heard again in the famous drinking song in "Cavalleria," and Montanari will sing "Sartuzza" for the first time at this house. A new singer, Barnatta Meuller, will be heard as "Nedda" in "I Pagliacci," Salassa, of course, will again sing the great part of the "Clown," which contains the prologue and the public will have an opportunity to hear again the splendid intermezzos in both operas.

On Tuesday, Thursday, Sunday nights and Saturday matinee, another Verdi opera, "Ernani," will be produced with unexcelled principals, and the big chorus. Castellano will assume the name part, for which his resonant tenor is well suited. "Don Carlos," King of Spain, will be in the hands of Ferrari. This is one of the best baritone parts ever written, and Ferrari always scores in it. Dado has a splendid assignment as "Don Silva." In the part occurs the famous "Infelici" bass solo, which Dado considers one of his best things. "Elvira" will be sung by Nice Barbareschi. On the soprano devolves nearly all the singing for the female voice, and she will be well heard. Cortesi is the "Don Ricardo," Giovani is "Sannie Kruger," and Napoleoni has the role of "Jag." The noble choruses with which "Ernani" abounds are sure to be well handled by the company. The finale of the scene in the tomb of "Charlemange" is one of the greatest in the range of opera.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The attraction at the Grand Opera House for week commencing Monday evening, October 14, will be John Arthur Fraser's version of "The Little Minister." This is the only authorized version of J. M. Barrie's celebrated novel. The play follows the story of the book very closely and is one of the most interesting and wholesome plays on the American stage today. The part of Gavin Dishart, the "Little Minister," will be played by Herschel Mayall, and the public may rest assured that it will be portrayed in a highly successful manner. This sterling actor has done everything well since his engagement at the Grand, and has made more friends than any previous leading man. Mr. Mayall is one of the most popular men on the stage and, during the Haworth season, which is now drawing to a close, he has shared the honors with the star in every production in which he has appeared. The interest of next week's play is centered around the gypsy girl, "Babbie" by name, and this character will be played by Laura Nelson Hall, who makes her re-appearance after a serious illness. This character has been made famous by Maude Adams and some critics have said that Miss Hall's portrayal is superior to that of Miss Adams. The balance of the cast will be in competent hands, the complete cast being as follows: "Rev. Gavin Dishart," the "Little Minister," Herschel Mayall; "Capt. Halliwell," Wm. Bernard; "Lord Rintoul," Wm. Greenleaf;; "Tammas Whamond," Chas. Waldron; "Peter Tosh," H. D. Byers; "Henry Munn," Ed Lawrence; "John Spens," Gilbert Gardner; "Sheriff Riach," Chas. Smiley; "Rob Dow," Fred J. Butler; "Sanders Webster," Ainar Acton; "Mr. Ogilvy," Burr Caruth; "Sergt. O'Kelley," Edward Asher; "Wild Lindsay," Chas. Dorris; "Lady Babbie," the "Egyptian," Laura Nelson Hall; "Naanie Webster," Agnes Maynard; "Jean Baxter," Marie Benson.

CENTRAL THEATRE.

"Wife for Wife," John A. Stevens' powerful drama of Southern life will be given an elaborate production at the Central Theatre during the week commencing next Monday night. It is a play of incidents and strong action, with effective climaxes and exciting situations. The play presents entertaining comedy features of the negro character order and requires magnificent scenic mounting, which will be accorded it at the production at the Central Theatre.

IN AN OLD INN.

A jolly old landlord and a blazing fire—
Without the snow—the sleet,
Let the bleak winter wreak his heart's desire!
Here the old friends we meet.

While fast the shadows of night are falling
No comfort shall we lack;
For is not Falstaff from a corner calling:
"Sirrah, a cup of sack!"

It is no time for grief—for melancholy;
Great tales there are to tell;
The "sluggish knight" drinks with the friar jolly—
Not from St. Dunstan's well!

Trampling of feet—voices in hallways humming;
Here a tired traveler nods;
A trumpet sounds. The coach—the coach is coming—
Oh, for a coach, ye gods!

Care is river, but we've crossed the ferry
To where the bright fields bloom;
Chaucer comes in with the tales of Canterbury;
Room for the old man—room!

He scarce hath told the tale—sweet in the telling,
Ere a glad eye discerns
A gentler guest; a chorus, glad is swelling:
"'Fore God, here's Bobby Burns!"

Was ever yet so wonderful a party?
Dash down, oh, wintry rain!
Chink glasses, oh, my masters, drink ye hearty
Until we meet again.

WIVES, MAIDS AND NURSES AT WHITE HOUSE.

moved into the executive mansion.

A problem which will give the President almost as much concern as the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine, as soon as he enters the White House, is how he will be able to find room for the members of his personal household.

Mr. Roosevelt has six children, the eldest of whom is a young lady in her eighteenth year, and the youngest a baby who has not yet seen two winters. With Mrs. Roosevelt, the family numbers eight. Other members of the household will be a nurse, perhaps a governess, at least one maid and a housekeeper. This makes twelve in all.

Mr. Roosevelt has the largest family of children of any President who even entered the White House, and is therefore confronted with a problem which none of his predecessors, except Mr. Cleveland, had to face.

In the Presidential residence there are only five sleeping apartments. Three of those are of goodly dimensions, the two others are not very large. While the White House is a large structure, more than half the interior space is devoted to public offices and reception rooms, and other Presidents with smaller families have never had room to spare.

During his second term Mr. Cleveland was confronted with much the same problem that will require solution now. He then had three young children, and in addition to them and Mrs. Cleveland there were six women of the household, including nurses, maids and others who had to be provided with sleeping accommodations.

In order to make room for all a storeroom in the basement was converted into an extra bedchamber. This was not a satisfactory arrangement, but there was no alternative. On the ground floor is also a large billiard room, which was not used during Mr. McKinley's administration. This apartment may be brought into requisition in the present emergency, although the new President is fond of billiards. In the basement at present are two small rooms, in which the steward and the butler sleep.—New York Herald.

Tolstoi's Trip a Triumphal March.

St. Petersburg.—Tolstoi's journey to Sebastopol was almost a triumphal march. At all stations along the route, notably Kursk, Kieff, Kharkoff, Yalta and Sebastopol, people swarmed about the train offering bouquets of flowers. At Tula, when Tolstoi left home, hundreds of peasants gave him an enthusiastic send-off. The Count left his home at Yasnala Poliana in good condition and cheerful, but a doctor accompanied him. Telegrams from Sebastopol say he stood the journey well and is now comfortably installed in a delightful house. His family returns soon, but the Count and Countess remain in the Crimea until the beginning of the year, when they return to Moscow. The Russian newspapers are silent about Tolstoi because M. Sipjagin, Minister of the Interior, prohibited publication of details of the trip.—New York Journal.

Mr. Roosevelt as an Author.

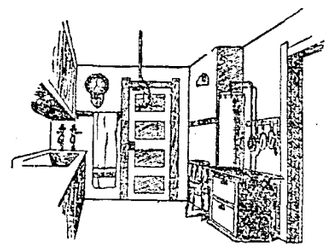

It is reported that President Roosevelt said to a friend a few years ago: "If I'm ever forced to quit politics I'll devote myself to writing." He is the first chief magistrate who has made authorship a business. Jefferson left several volumes of papers of various sorts and Madison wrote some notable essays on the constitution, published in the Federalist. Grant wrote his memoirs late in life, and Cleveland has written a few magazine articles recently. But none except Roosevelt has been known as a distinctively litrary man.

A CORRECT KITCHEN.

COMPACT, CONVENIENTLY ARRANGED AND THEREFORE LABOR SAVING.

One's Head Should Save One's Heels Many Useless Steps—The Right Relative Position of Things—A Practical Kitchen Plan.

Having designed what has proved to be a very convenient and labor saving kitchen, I am pleased to present herewith a somewhat detailed description of the same for the benefit of others, says a writer in Good Housekeeping. The dimensions are about 9 by 12 feet. There is no outside door leading directly into the kitchen, there being an anteroom between the outer and the inner door. This arrangement is designed to serve certain cardinal purposes which every housewife will appreciate. First, it obviates the embarrassing necessity of throwing your kitchen open to the gaze of the back door errand caller at inopportune moments. Second, this anteroom is a convenient place for the family refrigerator. Here it is near at hand, and yet not in the least exposed to the heat of the stove.

This arrangement also obviates the annoyance of having the iceman track across the kitchen or into some other room at each delivery. Furthermore, it makes it entirely unnecessary for the housewife who has no help to stay about the house to receive the iceman. The inner doors leading to the kitchen and the sitting room, respectively, can be locked so that there is access to the refrigerator only. Further, this kitchen anteroom forms a very desirable protection against storm and cold in the winter.

The kitchen faces south, with a large window midway of the length, furnishing abundance of light. Against this same wall, between the window and the anteroom, is a cupboard, 3 by 4 feet, directly over the sink. This cupboard serves as a depository for a certain classification of kitchen articles, such as tea, coffee, spices, extracts, teapot, coffeepot, etc. On the same wall, at the other end of the kitchen, are hooks and bar, designed as hangers for miscellaneous cooking utensils. The stationary work table extends the full length of this side, exclusive of the sink provided with hot and cold water. Under this table there is a series of receptacles for crockery, kettles, pans, skillets and other kitchen tools; also a flour bin with separate pockets for the pastry flour and the flour for bread.

The entire east end wall is occupied with cupboards, divided into upper and lower sections, between which there is an extension of the stationary work table. The upper section is fitted with four shelves and the lower with two. One division of the upper section is set apart for the choice china and the other for the everyday set. One division of the lower section is the receptacle for the stock of tea towels, kitchen hand towels, aprons, etc., another for general grocery supplies, another for pie tins, bread pans, etc.

The door to the dining room swings either way with very slight touch, and the hinges are so constructed that pushing the door beyond a certain point relieves the automatic action, and the door remains stationary, a very desirable feature of a swinging door.

About midway along the north wall and directly opposite the window is the position of the gas range, at convenient distance from all working points of the kitchen. Just above the range and against the wall there is ample provision made for hanging such utensils as are most frequently used in the preparation of the meals. The hot water tank is set between the range and the chimney and, being connected with the furnace, gives ample heat radiation for the kitchen during the winter season. The pipe thimble for the coal range is supplied with a ventilating funnel, effectually removing steam and cooking odors from the kitchen.

From this description it will be readily seen that the plan combines the kitchen and the pantry. Experience with this kitchen has demonstrated that its compactness and the relative position of the various departments and appliances and points of attack reduce the wear and tear and drudgery of kitchen work to a minimum.

Cottage Cheese.

When making cottage cheese, instead of putting the sour milk on the fire—in this way it is often overcooked—set in a pan of boiling water, advises What to Eat. Renew the water if necessary. After it curdles drain thoroughly and add salt, pepper, butter and cream.

Recompense.

Mr. C. of —— was out in the Forty-five. He was taken, and was being brought to the Tower with Kalmarnock and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad cortege, and a lady, looking from a window, cried:

"You tall rebel," (Mr. M. was six feet four) "you will soon be shorter by a head."

"Does that give you pleasure, madame?" said Mr. M.

"Yes, it does."

"Then, madame," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain."—Andrew Lang in Longman's.

ANALYSIS OF J. F. CUTTER WHISKEY

In our analysis of the sample of whiskey left with us by you we find the Alcohol by volume to be 47.13% and by weight, 39.80%; the Extractive Matter amounts to 0.85% and the Inorganic Matter to but the minutest of traces.

As the result of those and other tests we find the whiskey to be free from all abnormal or deleterious ingredients; to be up to the standard strength; and to constitute an absolutely pure article.
